Gives background, objectives, project design, implementation, activities, etc. Acknowledges conceptual validity of universal job-oriented teaching materials, and impressive list of achievements during MATCOM's experience. Expresses doubts regarding long-term self-sustainability and questions assumptions based on availability of national funds for adaptation of training materials, relevancy of teaching and teaching materials in different countries, and national authorities' commitment. Points to need to motivate trainers and managers by improving employment conditions. RECOMMENDS: in-depth study of current operations; limiting activities to subjects and countries where potential for success exists; baseline criteria for national inputs; statistical data collection on trainees and funding for adaptation of training materials. Proposes high-level planning meeting. Annexes incl. country reports from India, Thailand, Burma, Sri Lanka, Philippines, Kenya, Ethiopia, Tanzania and Malay-

SG: ISEAS(DS529.3 S19)

The Burmese empire a hundred years ago / as described by Father Sangermano, with an introduction and notes by John Jardine. – Westminster: Constable, 1893. XXXIX, 311 p., index, 1 fold. map, app., bibliogr. p. XXXI to XXXII. – 3rd ed. of: A description of the Burmese empire. – Includes preface to the first edition (1833) signed "N. Wiseman" [i.e. Cardinal Wiseman].

p.221-276: Abstract of the Burmese code entitled Damasat : or, the golden rule

Note: Father Vincentius Sangermano, a Barnabite missionary, lived and worked in Burma from 1783 to 1808. As Symes recorded at the time: "he seemed a very respectable and intelligent man and wrote the Birman language fluently, and was held in high estimation by the natives for his exemplary life and inoffensive manners". His book is divided into sections on: Burmese Cosmography; Burmese History; Constitution of the Burmese Empire; Religion of the Burmese; Moral and Physical Constitution of the Burmese Empire; and Burmese Code. The last of these is significant for being the first translation of any of the numerous codes of law written on palm leaves. Sangermano was also one of the earliest Christian missionaries to study the languages, literatures and institutions of the people, and in this book, no matter how dry the subject matter, his empathy with the Burmese people is evident. In addition, because of his language skills, the high regard in which he was held, and his access to the king's officials and Pali scholars, Father Vincentius was able to tap original sources unavailable to others either at the time or since. No wonder his book has been treated as an authority by those writers who have followed him.

Note: Southeast Asia offers a balanced, readable account of the region from ancient modern times, covering traditional history as well as current events. SarDesai avoids exaggerating (as others do) the importance of the period of European colonial rule as he introduces us to the regions and peoples of Myanmar, Thailand, Malaysia, Singapore, Indonesia, Laos, Cambodia, Vietnam, and the Philippines. Combining thematic and chronological approaches with the study of colonialism, nationalism, domestic problems, and international relations, Southeast Asia manages to convey an Asian point of view throughout. In this revised fourth edition, Professor SarDesai brings his account of region's history up to date and provides a completely updated, comprehensive bibliography and chronology.

Note: Just married and returning to live in her new husband's native land, a young Austrian woman arrived with her Burmese husband by passenger ship in Rangoon in 1953. They were met at dockside by hundreds of well-wishers displaying colorful banners, playing music on homemade instruments, and carrying giant bouquets of flowers. She was puzzled by this unusual welcome until her embarrassed husband explained that he was something more than a recently graduated mining engineer - he was the Prince of Hsipaw, the ruler of an autonomous state in Burma's Shan mountains. And these people were his subjects! She immersed herself in the Shan lifestyle, eagerly learning the language, the culture, and the history of the Shan hill people.

The Princess of Hsipaw fell in love with this remote, exotic land and its warm and friendly people. She worked at her husband's side to bring change and modernization to their primitive country. Her efforts to improve the education and health care of the country, and her husband's commitment to improve the economic well-being of the people made them one of the most popular ruling couples in Southeast Asia. Then the violent military coup of 1962 shattered the idyllic existence of the previous ten years. Her life irrevocably changed. Inge Sargent tells a story of a life most of us can only dream about. She vividly describes the social, religious, and political events she experienced. She details the day-to-day living as a "reluctant ruler" and her role as her husband's equal - a role that perplexed the males in Hsipaw and created awe in the females. And then she describes the military events that threatened her life and that of her children. Twilight over Burma is a story of a great happiness destroyed by evil, of one woman's determination and bravery against a ruthless military regime, and of the truth behind the overthrow of one of Burma's most popular local leaders.

Saul, Jamie

The Naga of Burma / by Jamie Saul ; with photogr. by Dominique Viillard. – Bangkok: Orchid Pr., 2005. 214 p., 213 col. plates, 12 b. & w. plates, 56 sketches, 3 maps., notes, index, bibliogr. – ISBN 974-524-065-6

Note: In the words of Alan Macfarlane, Professor of Anthropological Science in the Department of Social Anthropology at the University of Cambridge, "there has long been a largely empty tract covering the eastern half of the Naga area. Because Burma has long been almost closed to visitors, including anthropologists, the rich materials on Naga culture from that area have remained un-recorded and unknown. It is as a contribution to filling in the facts on this area in particular, but also for the light it throws back on the Assam Naga, that we can welcome Jamie Saul's monograph as a major addition to the ethnography of the Naga peoples."

This book is the result of over 30 years of study by the author on the Burmese Naga groups inhabiting the area ranging between the Chindwin River and the international border with India. Building up on a base of unpublished official tour diaries and reports dating from the 1800s, the author made several visits to the Naga regions on both sides of the border and carried out research among the Naga, establishing contacts and encouraging Nagas themselves to co-operate in the gathering of the materials that form the basis of this book.

A wide range of excellent colour illustrations by Dominique Viillard complement the text and, along with sketches relating to the text, provide a visual record of the numerous groups found throughout the Burmese Naga region.

The book introduces the Naga at their New Year festival held at Lahe and then moves on to chapters dealing with the breakdown of the different groups and their linguistic connections according to recent research, as well as covering other aspects such as tattoo, costume, architecture, social structure, life cycle, religion and festivals, arts and crafts, human sacrifice, lycanthropy, warfare and head-hunting.

Woodfuel flows in the dry zone of Myanmar : a case study ; in collaboration with The Pilot Integrated Watershed Development for the Kinda Dam Project (Mya/81/ 003), Ministry of Forestry [/ presented by U Saw Thun Khiang]. V, 54 p., bibliogr. p. 42-43, tables. – (RWEDP field document ; 39) – GCP/RAS/131/NET. - At head of title: Regional Wood Energy Development Programme in Asia. - June 1993.

FAO MFN 354437

Contents: Foreword - Executive Summary - 1. Introduction - 2. Background Information on the Study Area - 3. Types and Nature of Woodfuel in the Area - 4. Villages and People Involved in the Woodfuel Trade - 5. Woodfuel Distribution System and Pricing - 6. Woodfuel End-user Groups - 7 Woodfuel Consumption and the Supply Potential - 8. Conclusions and Recommendations - 9 Bibliography

Note: This study is one of several woodfuel flow studies undertaken with support from RWEDP. It provides an insight in the market mechanisms, consumption patterns and the socio-economic status of fuelwood gatherers and traders in the dry zone of Myanmar. It confirms the important role the fuelwood trade plays in providing (additional) income to poor and often landless rural people.

The dry zone of Myanmar is situated in the centre of Myanmar. It consists of hilly areas and reaches to the central plains. Bamboo plays an important role next to other woodfuels. The fuelwood trade is presented for six woodfuel resource areas and seven villages. The woodfuel distribution system is reported with details about woodfuel prices, royalties and the effect of transport on prices. The woodfuel user groups are described. These consist of domestic and institutional users, cottage and village industries. Woodfuel consumption and the supply potential are discussed, particularly the supply potential of the study area.

Note: Introduce children to the wonderful world of art, with projects from around the globe. Creativity and culture come together in this guidebook to ethnic crafts that people practice in everyday life. From Chinese calligraphy to Pueblo Indian pottery to Adinkra cloth from Ghana, the projects encompass a wide variety of techniques and materials. Inspire young artists to make textiles, masks, sculptures, jewelry, mosaics, miniature paintings, musical instruments, and more. With comprehensive information on many cultures, easily understood instructions, and an interdisciplinary approach, this will appeal to adults and children. Includes guidance on teaching multicultural projects and an extensive bibliography.

Drugs, oil, and war : the United States in Afghanistan, Colombia, and Indochina / Peter Dale Scott. – Lanham: Rowman & Littlefield, c2003. XIX, 227 p., index, bibliogr. p.
 209-211. – (War and peace library)
 ISBN 074252521X (cloth) ; 0742525228 (pbk.)
 Contains: 1. Drugs and oil in U.S. Asian wars : from Indochina to Afghanistan
 3. The origins of the drug proxy strategy : the KMT, Burma, and U.S. organized crime
 Note: Publisher's description: Peter Dale Scott's brilliantly researched tour de force illuminates the underlying forces that drive U.S. global policy from Vietnam to Colombia and now to Afghanistan and Iraq. He brings to light the intertwined patterns of drugs, oil politics, and intelligence networks that have been so central to the larger workings of U.S. intervention and escalation in Third World countries through alliances with drug-trafficking proxies. This strategy was originally developed in the late 1940s to contain communist China; it has since been used to secure control over foreign petroleum resources. The result has been a staggering increase in the global drug traffic and the mafias associated with it—a problem that will worsen until there is a change in policy. Scott argues that covert operations almost always outlast the specific purpose for which they were designed. Instead, they grow and become part of a hostile constellation of forces. The author terms this phenomenon parapolitics—the exercise of power by covert means—which tends to metastasize into deep politics—the interplay of unacknowledged forces that spin out of the control of the original policy initiators. We must recognize that U.S. influence is grounded not just in military and economic superiority, Scott contends, but also in so-called soft power. We need a "soft politics" of persuasion and nonviolence, especially as America is embroiled in yet another disastrous intervention, this time in Iraq.

Sein, Kenneth <b. 1918>

The great Po Sein : a chronicle of the Burmese theater / by Kenneth (Maung Khe) Sein and J. A. Withey ; drawings by Ba Lone Lay. – Bloomington ; London : Indiana Univ. Pr., c1965, 1966. XIV, 170 p., tables, gloss., app., bibliogr. p. 170. – ISBN 0-8371-8737-0 – Herbert 296

Note: This book is about the legendary Po Sein (1877-1952), "Father of the Burmese Theatre", told by his son Maung Khe (Kenneth) Sein. It is the story of PO Sein, the performer, his ambitions, his struggles, his many imaginative theatrical innovations, his hypnotic effect on those who worked for him and those who watched him perform, and his very romantic life and loves. Equipped with exceptional artistry and a splendid sense of showmanship, he survived, in his lifetime, the last of the Burmese kings, the British, the Japanese and the Burmese Nationalists. Moreover, he conquered them all with his enchanting art. The history of his remarkable troupe, which entertained generations of Burmese from the mid-1890s until his death in 1952, and which continued for two more decades, led by his two very able sons, is also the history of Burmese performing arts in this century.

Sell. – Bangkok: Orchid Pr., 1999. 150 p., illus., map, gloss.
– (Asian portraits = Visages d'Asie) – ISBN 974-8304-36-1

Note: Burma. The name evokes images of color and mystery, the alluring and forbidden. Cut off from the world for more than three decades by a repressive military government, Burma has only recently cracked its doors open to foreigners. American writer Julie Sell set out to discover this little-known country through encounters with the Burmese people. Despite significant potential risk to themselves, many people were willing to tell their remarkable stories. From the political circles of Rangoon to rebel outposts on the rugged frontier, from Buddhist monasteries to hilltribe villages, Whispers at the Pagoda: Portraits of Modern Burma offers a unique look inside a country that the world has nearly forgotten.

Burma : a strategic perspective [electronic resource] / Andrew Selth. – [San Francisco, Calif.] Asia Foundation, 2001. 43 p., incl. bibliogr. ref. – (Working paper ; 13) – This paper was prepared for the conference on Strategic Rivalries on the Bay of Bengal: the Burma / Myanmar Nexus, Washington, D.C., February 1, 2001.

Internet Links:

Note: A thorough presentation of the strategic importance of Burma to Southeast Asia. The paper establishes a historical framework of the area, discusses Burma's international rivalries before 1988, and concludes with the modern strategic environment. Burma, once isolated, was discovered for its strategic value by neighboring superpowers, thus making it the subject of many wars.

Contents: 1 The seven sisters of India the tribal realm 11 - 2 The indigenous peoples of northeast and their origins 23 - 3 The apa tanis fathers of mankind in a rice bowl 35 - 4 The peoples of the sun and moon united in Donyi-polo 43 - 5 The house - the womb 51 - 6 In heaven as on earth the mythology of weaving 65 - 7 All is color and motion the world as a dance 77 - 8 Poetry, devotion and strength the art of the Manipuri dances 89 - 9 Words of the shaman in a jungle of ... - 10 High religion and magicians Buddhism between Tibet and Burma 109 - 11 I am the tiger, the buffalo is my sis' man, beast and missionaries in Northeast India - 12 Fertility through stones and heads ...

Note: "The Seven Sisters of India provides a detailed and balanced picture of life in this remote region, which was last examined some 50 years ago. At that time reports were limited in scope, and customs such as head-hunting were given undue emphasis." "Individual chapters focus on the different aspects of life, religious belief and ritual. The geography of this region of contrasts, the origins of its people, their houses, the cult of the sun and the moon, ancestor worship, weaving, dance, beliefs connected to head-hunting and matriarchal structures are among those aspects given special attention." - Book jacket

Note: Plans for a $10 million, six-year development project.

On a 40-hectare site, Silver Elephant is using Chinese laborers to build an 80-room hotel, 100 shops, 15 restaurants, a school and hundreds of residential units. The project is a mere 15 meters from the border, so Chinese will be able to rent and operate shops during the day and return home to China at night.

The birds of Burma / by B. E. Smythies ; ed. by H. C. Smith and P. F. Garthwaite ; containing 31 col. plates from paintings by A. M. Hughes. – Rangoon : American Baptist Mission Pr., 1940. XXIX, 580 p., incl. col. front., 30 col. plates, fold. map, gloss., bibliogr. p. XXII to XXVII. – Frontispiece and each plate accompanied by guard sheet with descriptive letterpress. – The author had no part in the original conception and planning of this book, for which Mr. H. C. Smith and Mr. J. K. Stanford ... were jointly responsible ... Mr. Stanford was to have written the book, and had in fact completed part of it when the outbreak of war made it impossible for him to continue ... the present author agreed to take over the work in December 1939. - Acknowledgements

Differentials in contraceptive use among the Karen in Chiang Mai Province, Northern Thailand / Rossarin Sootipong. – Canberra: Australian National Univ., Dept. of Demography, Research School of Social Sciences, 1991. 31 p., map. – (Working papers in demography ; 27)

ISBN 0646047221 (not printed on item)

Note: Using data from the 1986 census of hill tribe populations, this study identifies and tests hypotheses associated with causal factors (cultural, socioeconomic, and family planning) affecting contraceptive use among the Karen, the largest hill tribe minority group in Thailand, in Chiang Mai province, northern Thailand. Estimated logistic regression models indicate that women who had high ability to use the Thai language, women with a high level of wealth, and women who had received family planning advice were most likely to use contraception. The analysis of Karen women who wanted no more children, and those who wanted to postpone the next child also shows similar results.

Gender ideology and psychological reality : an essay on cultural reproduction / Melford E. Spiro. – New Haven and London : Yale Univ. Pr., 1997. XX, 220 p., index, bibliogr. p. 191-209. – ISBN 0-300-07007-1

Contents 1. Introduction - 2. Males and Females in Village Burma - 3. Cultural Internalization: Conscious Desires and Beliefs - 4. The Concept of Desire - 5. Cultural Internalization: Unconscious Desires and Beliefs - 6. Culturally Constituted Defenses and Psychopathology - 7. Internalization of Sex and Gender Ideologies - 8. Conclusions and Implications.

Note: Why do members of a society espouse culturally constituted beliefs that are at odds with their personal interests and experiences? In this book Melford Spiro, a psychological anthropologist, answers this question by investigating ideologies of gender and sex relations in Burma, according to which men are superior and women are morally and sexually dangerous - despite the reality that women enjoy high economic, legal, and social status.

Spiro argues that these sexist ideologies - prevalent in most of the human world - are an expression of male anxieties and insecurities. Spiro propose a theory of cultural reproduction that is an alternative to the enculturation model of radical cultural determinism. He postulates that cultural systems are reproduced only insofar as they are internalized by members of society and that this occurs if these systems resonate with members' conscious and unconscious beliefs and desires or are employed by them as a resource for the construction of defense mechanisms.

He compares his firsthand observations of a Burmese village to extensive data from a wide array of other societies (including our own) and argues that this explanation applies to all societies.

Note: This essay explores the political, economic, and military history of Myanmar (Burma) and how various events within and between these arenas have stifled the country's potential to rise beyond the current political and economic status of its seemingly once-equal Asian neighbors- Thailand and South Korea. In this respect, Burma/Myanmar is an anomaly, and so being, a fragile country in need of policy which no longer views economics as subservient to the political process and to political survival.

Hattie : a woman's mission to Burma / Joan W Swift. – San Geronimo, CA : Half Meadow Pr., 2003. X, 393 p., illus.
 ISBN 0-9723269-0-1 (hd.) ; 0-9723269-1-X (pbk.)

Note: "Hattie, the biography of Harriet Phinney (1861-1938), is the story of one woman's search for a role more meaningful than the domestic life prescribed for her by her family and the society of her day. Hattie's quest for such a role and the particular form it took exemplified the aspirations of many young women of that time." "Growing up in Rochester, New York, Hattie tired of her "do-nothing life" and in 1884 became a teacher at the newly established Spelman Academy in Atlanta, Georgia. The following year, she received appointment as a Baptist missionary to Burma, arriving in Rangoon at the age of 24 to begin her initiation into the demanding work of the mission. Eventually joining with Ruth Whitaker Ranney, Hattie found her life's work as an educator of native women and founder of the Burman Women's Bible School." "In excerpts from letters to her family over 56 years, Hattie's own words vividly portray the challenges and rewards of missionary life in Burma during the historic years of the British Raj." – Book jacket.

Abstract: This article proposes a political economy of extraction framework that accounts for political order and state collapse as alternative outcomes in the face of lootable wealth. Different types of institutions of extraction can be built around lootable resources – with divergent effects on political stability. If rulers are able to forge institutions of extraction that give them control over the revenues generated by lootable resources, then these resources can contribute to the maintenance of political order by providing the income with which to govern. In contrast, the breakdown or absence of such institutions increases the risk of civil war by making it easier for rebels to get income. The framework is used to explain two puzzling cases that experienced sharply contrasting political trajectories in the face of lootable resources: Sierra Leone and Burma. A focus on institutions of extraction provides a stronger understanding of the wide range of political possibilities - from chaos, through dictatorship, to democracy - in resource-rich countries
