The effect of a light-heat stimulus on the dustbathing behaviour of red Burmese junglefowl. – 1992. – Thesis
 Note: The present study sought to test the suggestion advanced by Vestergaard, Hogan, Kruijt (1990) and others (Hein, 1970) that sunlight can induce dustbathing in red Burmese junglefowl. Red Burmese junglefowl were exposed to a light-heat stimulus for a period of one hour at one of three times during a regular 12 hour light:12 hour dark schedule. The duration, frequency and distribution of dustbathing was found to be significantly affected by the light-heat stimulus. The time of day during which the stimulus was presented also had an effect on the strength of the birds dustbathing response, so that birds exposed to the stimulus at noon responded much more vigorously than those shown the same stimulus either before or after noon. The effect of the light-heat stimulus on the basic cyclic pattern of dustbathing seemed to be balanced with the amount of dustbathing behaviour that occurred during the normal period. The system returned to a normal pattern of dustbathing one day after exposure to the light-heat stimulus, but it required two days to return to a normal level of dustbathing. The response to the light-heat stimulus was interpreted in terms of a hydro-mechanical model (Lorenz, 1950). (Abstract shortened by UMI.)

The lady : Aung San Suu Kyi, Nobel Laureate and Burma's prisoner / Barbara Victor. – Boston: Faber & Faber, 1998. 226 p.

ISBN 0-571-19944-5

Note: This is the first full account of one woman's heroic struggle against SLORC, the brutal military junta in power in Burma since 1988, and an expose of one of the most violent and corrupt regimes in the world today. Aung San Suu Kyi, Nobel Peace Prize laureate, has been leading a battle for democracy, freedom, and human rights in Burma.

The daughter of General Aung San, the man who gained independence for Burma from the British and who was assassinated on the eve of Burmese independence, Aung San Suu Kyi alone made the world aware of the regime that functions by torture, terror, and murder.

Based on exclusive interviews with the military leaders of SLORC, the drug lords who control the export of opium and heroin, foreign business investors and apologists for the junta, jailed and tortured victims of SLORC, and Aung San Suu Kyi herself, the story of Burma today emerges: Orwellian, tragic, and with only one flicker of hope, known to all as "the Lady."

Caught between borders : response strategies of the internally displaced / ed. by Marc Vincent and Birgitte Refslund Sorensen. – London ; Sterling, Va. : Pluto Press in association with Norwegian Refugee Council, 2001. xiv, 317 p., illus., maps, index, bibliogr. p. 285-300.

ISBN 0745318193 ; 0745318185 (pbk.)

Contains: 2. Asia. Afghanistan: Displaced in a Devastated Country. Burma: Displaced Karens, Like Water on Khu Leaf. Sri Lanka: Developing New Livelihoods in the Shadow of War: Displaced, Relocated and Resettled Muslims

Note: "Internally displaced persons are those who have been forced to flee their homes as a result of war, natural or man-made disaster, or generalised violence, and who do not cross an internationally recognized border. There are an astounding 28 million people around the world who currently qualify as IDP. Unlike refugees, they have no organisation to deal with their plight." "Very little is known about how people respond to the experience of displacement. In economic terms, the presence of the internally displaced is obvious - as they open small restaurants and bars, or as they sell handicrafts at markets in order to make a little money. What are less obvious are the informal protection mechanisms that enable people to cope with the experience of displacement: the information networks that warn them of impending danger, or inform the displaced of events occurring in their home villages while they are absent."
