The Kinwun Min-Gyi's London diary : the first mission of a Burmese Minister to Britain, 1872 / by L.E. Bagshawe. – Bangkok: Orchid Pr., 2004. 412 p., 26 b. &w. illus., 1 table, index. – ISBN 974-524-021-4

Note: In the years following the Second Burmese War, British colonial authorities occupied approximately half of the Kingdom of Burma, as far east as the Irrawadi Valley, effectively controlling the entire Kingdom's access to the sea, and thus its ability to engage freely in international trade. Yet the British neither formally annexed nor declared free the remaining portion of the Burmese kingdom. Min-don, the newly crowned king of what remained of Burma, walked a fine line with his uninvited and powerful foreign "guests", attempting to balance cordiality toward the intruders with at least the appearance of independent authority over the remaining, unoccupied, part of the kingdom. An uneasy balance between co-operation and antagonism thus characterized the attitudes of both the Burmese and British authorities toward one another, a balance that became increasingly strained following the bitter experiences of the British in India in 1857, and Calcutta's new determination that British Burma, at least, should be fully assimilated into their system.

The Kinwun Min-gyi was a voice of moderation in the clamour of opinion in the Burmese court as to how to deal with the British usurpers, convinced as he was of the need to cooperate with and even to emulate the West in order to strengthen the Burmese chances of eventually winning back their territory and freedom. Thus the first Burmese diplomatic mission to London in 1872, led by the Kinwun Min-gyi, worked zealously both to convey Burma's culture and underlying civility to the world, and to further the understanding of the West in the minds of the Burmese. Despite strong opposition from the rulers of British India in Calcutta, who saw the mission as an attempt by the Burmese Court to establish direct communication with London, and thus to bypass their authority, the mission succeeded in both objectives.

Accomplished statesman, scholar and gentleman, the Kinwun Min-gyi was well suited to lead this first Burmese mission to the heart of the British Empire. His daily record of the momentous journey and of the reactions of the Envoys to their first observations of Western cities, technology and mores, made available again after many years' obscurity in a new translation, remains a fascinating and enlightening document for all with interest in this turbulent period of Burmese history

The Buddhist murals of Pagan : timeless vistas of the cosmos / Claudine Bautze-Picron ; with fotogr. by Joachim K. Bautze. – Trumbull, CT: Weatherhill ; Bangkok: Orchid Pr., c2003. XIV, 242 p., illus. (some col.), maps, bibliogr. p. 227-232. – ISBN 0834805332 (N. America) ; 974-524-025-7 (Asia, Europe, UK)

Note: Treasures hide in the temples of Pagan - treasures in part never meant to be seen, enshrouded in the darkness of high vaults. They compose a unique ensemble in the Buddhist world of the eleventh to fourteenth century, giving us a glimpse of a lost splendour, and providing evidence of the major political, religious and artistic position that Pagan then held. Adorning the walls and ceilings of those monuments, they constitute a prayer to the Buddha: to the Buddha as a human being, to his last life, but also to his numerous lives when he was in search of the truth.

This comprehensive study covers, for the first time, not only the murals found within temples near the historic city of Pagan, but also those within the monuments scattered elsewhere over the Pagan plain. Following an initial iconographic analysis, the author proceeds to reconstruct the overall vision of the murals within the broader context of the interior spaces of the temples, revealing these monuments as visualizations of the Buddhist cosmos and reflecting the cosmological nature of the Buddha. Author Bautze-Picron is an authority on early Indic Buddhist art and her erudite descriptions of these lost treasures are complemented by a magnificent photographic record of the surviving murals themselves. Essential reading for all with interest in the history and diversity of Buddhist art.

Note: In the early stages of the Second World War, the vast crescent of British-ruled territories stretching from India to Singapore appeared as a massive Allied asset. It provided scores of soldiers and great quantities of raw materials and helped present a seemingly impregnable global defense against the Axis. Yet, within a few weeks in 1941-42, a Japanese invasion had destroyed all this, sweeping suddenly and decisively through south and southeast Asia to the Indian frontier, and provoking the extraordinary revolutionary struggles which would mark the beginning of the end of British dominion in the East and the rise of today's Asian world.

More than a military history, this gripping account of groundbreaking battles and guerrilla campaigns creates a panoramic view of British Asia as it was ravaged by warfare, nationalist insurgency, disease, and famine. It breathes life into the armies of soldiers, civilians, laborers, businessmen, comfort women, doctors, and nurses who confronted the daily brutalities of a combat zone which extended from metropolitan cities to remote jungles, from tropical plantations to the Himalayas. Drawing upon a vast range of Indian, Burmese, Chinese, and Malay as well as British, American, and Japanese voices, the authors make vivid one of the central dramas of the twentieth century: the birth of modern south and southeast Asia and the death of British rule. – Publisher note

Beard, Richard <1909-1997>

From Calcutta with love : the World War II letters of Richard and Reva Beard / ed. by Elaine Pinkerton ; forew. by Wendall A. Phillips ; introd. by Otha Spencer. – Lubbock, Tex.: Texas Tech Univ. Pr., c2002. XXVI, 352 p., illus., index, bibliogr. p. 329-333. – ISBN 0896724689 (cloth)

Note: "The saga of China-Burma-India - World War II's forgotten theater - is as heroic as it is seldom told. CBI ground troops were charged with the Herculean task of carving a road from India to China, and the treacherous flight pattern over the Himalayas, crucial to supplying the Allied effort, was a virtual suicide mission. Pilots who "flew the Hump" braved violent monsoon rains and deadly wind shifts."

"Richard Beard, an Army psychologist assigned to the 142nd General Hospital in Calcutta, dealt daily with emotional trauma. While American and British soldiers hacked their way through dense tropical forests to build a supply route, Beard immersed himself in the internal jungles of those he treated. A pillar to the men he served, Beard was an astute listener and observer, pleased to be playing his part. But his own pillar was his wife, Reva, half a world away in Findlay, Ohio. In daily letters to Reva, he poured out not only his own longing and passions but also the unfolding drama of war in painfully exquisite detail tempered with tenderness and humor." – Book jacket.

Tectonique cenozoïque de l'escarpement du plateau Shan (Myanmar) la collision oblique entre l'Inde et l'Asie en Birmanie / Guillaume Bertrand ; sous la dir. de Claude Rangim. – 1999. 284 p. – Paris 6, thèse doctorat, 1999.
 National Thesis number : 1999PA066060

Abstract : Si la collision frontale entre l'Inde et l'Eurasie a été le sujet de nombreuses études, les effets de la convergence très oblique entre l'Inde et l'Asie du sud-est sont encore mal connus. A ce titre, la Birmanie (aussi appelée Myanmar) occupe une position privilégiée, tant sur le plan géographique que scientifique. Le but de ce travail a été de contraindre l'histoire tectonique, au cenozoïque, de la région de l'escarpement occidental du plateau Shan (ou escarpement Shan, Birmanie centrale), ainsi que les relations et la signification des structures géologiques majeures que l'on y retrouve (faille de Sagaing, ceinture métamorphique de Mogok, escarpement et plateau Shan). Cette étude, basée sur des observations de terrain, le traitement d'images satellites et des analyses géochronologiques et microtectoniques, a permis de mettre en évidence deux étapes majeures dans l'histoire cenozoïque de la région d'étude. la première est marquée par un très fort étirement ductile n-nw-sse (lineations minérales, boudins, plis en fourreau, plans de cisaillement simple) que l'on retrouve essentiellement le long de la ceinture métamorphique de mogok. les résultats radiochronologiques montrent qu'elle a été active entre 30 et 17 ma le long de l'escarpement shan et dans la région de mogok. la seconde est marquée par une tectonique cassante qui s'exprime sous la forme de failles n-s dextres décrochantes (dont la faille de sagaing), de failles n160 dextres transpressives (escarpement shan), de plis et chevauchements associés, et de failles n070 senestres. cette tectonique cassante est encore active, et a débuté au miocène moyen ou supérieur. ainsi, sur la base de critères tant géométriques que chronologiques, je déduis que la faille de sagaing et la ceinture métamorphique qui borde le plateau shan sont des structures tectoniques indépendantes l'une de l'autre. la ceinture métamorphique, le long de l'escarpement shan et dans la région de mogok, est interprétée comme une zone de cisaillement ductile transensif dextre qui accompagne la migration vers le nord du pinceau indien. elle fait partie d'une large bande de déformation distribuée, qui inclut notamment le bassin central birman, et qui accommode une partie du mouvement relatif entre l'Inde et le bloc de Sundaland. la faille de sagaing et les structures cassantes qui lui sont associées viennent ultérieurement recouper ce système, et sont encore actives aujourd'hui. la transition entre ces deux phases tectoniques se fait au miocène moyen ou supérieur, à la faveur de la reorganisation cinématique majeure qui affecte l'ensemble de la région.

Contains: 18. When Democracy Fails: The Legacy of Burma's Abortive Uprising.
Note: "As globalization rapidly replaces the cold war paradigm, disturbing aspects of this transition are often glossed over. Jan Black illuminates the problems that have arisen such as growing refugee populations, increased nationalism, and describes how the narrow distribution of benefits from globalization has created a yawning gap in wealth and power both among and within states. She works on the premise that this disturbing and growing gap is partly the product of a globalized capitalist system run amuck and which she describes as "mobile money and immobilized political leadership." - Book jacket.

ISBN 974-8304-66-3

Note: This is a richly illustrated book on the outrageous behaviour of the British government, driven largely by merchant and missionary interests, towards the Kingdom of Burma. It is a concise and useful summary of events surrounding and leading up to the three Anglo-Burmese wars (1824-26, 1852, 1885-86), and investigates an issue long ignored or covered up by writers until now - what happened to the fabulous riches in gold and precious stones so shamelessly looted from the Mandalay Palace.

Resisting dictatorship : repression and protest in Southeast Asia / Vincent Boudreau. – Cambridge ; New York : Cambridge Univ. Pr., 2004. XV, 290 p., map, index, incl. bibliogr. ref. – ISBN 0-521-83989-0

Table of contents: 1. Introduction

2. Protest, repression and transition in Southeast Asia
3. Authoritarian attack and dictatorial rise
4. Protest in socialist Burma
5. New Order repression and the Indonesian opposition
6. The Philippine new society and state repression
7. Repression and protest in comparative perspective
8. People power and insurgency in the Philippine transition
9. Protest and the underground in Burma
10. Indonesia's democracy protests
11. Democracy protest and state repression.

Note: Vince Boudreau compares strategies of repression and protest in post-war Burma, Indonesia and the Philippines because these alternative strategies shaped the social bases and opposition cultures available to dissidents and, in turn, influenced their effectiveness. He includes first-hand research as well as the the social movements' literature to consider the interactions between the regimes in the wake of repression, and the subsequent emergence of democracy. Boudreau offers a genuinely comparative study of dictatorship and resistance in South East Asia.

The Second World War : a people's history / Joanna Bourke. – New York : Oxford University Pr., 2001. VIII, 270 p., illus., maps, ind., incl. bibliogr. ref.
ISBN 0192802240

Contains: 5. War in China, Burma, and India - 6. War in South-East Asia and the Pacific

Note: "The Second World War surpassed all previous wars in the sheer cost of many millions of lives, the majority of them civilian. It left a world reeling from physical destruction on a scale never experienced before or since, and from the psychological traumas of loss, of imprisonment and genocide, and permanent exile from home." "In this short book, Joanna Bourke turns an unblinking eye on the events and outcomes in the vast number of places where the war was fought: throughout Western and Central Europe, on the Eastern Front in the Soviet Union, in the Pacific, in Africa, in Asia. She shows where the strategic decisions came from and how they were implemented. In addition to the facts of this global conflict, she details the human, individual cost. Through diary entries and recorded oral history, we experience how ordinary people felt when they witnessed or heard of events, from the declaration of war on the radio to the mass murders carried out by Nazi soldiers in Russian villages." "Our understanding of the past conflict and our own age of violence and human atrocity into which the Second World War thrust us will be greatly enhanced by the scope and detail of this book." – Book jacket.

Bragg, Melvyn, 1939-

A son of war / Melvyn Bragg. – London : Sceptre, 2001. 426 p. – ISBN 0340734159

Note: "The upheavals of the Second World War reverberated in the peace that followed, and many found a return to the old life more difficult than they had anticipated. Like Sam Richardson, who was determined to break free of the constraints of his background and leave Cumbria for the promised land of Australia. Yet now, a few months on, he has settled for a job in Wigton's paper factory, and believes he has put both his aspirations and his memories of fighting in Burma behind him. His wife, Ellen, begins to know better, realising how close to the brink their marriage had come. Between them their young son Joe strives to fulfil their conflicting expectations for him, as he meets the hurdles of childhood and adolescence and confronts his own demons." "A Son of War portrays a family forever altered by an experience subsequent generations can scarcely imagine, yet whose individual hopes, compromises and quiet triumphs form the fabric of everyday, universal life." - book jacket.

Note: In 1942, as war spread in the Far East and the British, Japanese and Chinese fought ferocious battles on Burmese soil, an 11-year-old Anglo-Burmese boy and his family found themselves trapped in the path of the advancing armies. Like hundreds of thousands of other refugees abandoned by the civil administration, their only hope of survival was to try to escape on foot to India through the dense jungles of Northern Burma.

Stephen Brookes was that young boy, and in this book he describes the flight from his affluent home and the fearful 3,000-mile journey that partially destroyed his family.

Those eight months of fear, sickness and starvation turned him from a boy into a man as he witnessed the death of his father and took on responsibility for his mother and sick brother and sister, until they finally reached safety at Jhansi in India. - Book jacket.

Global communications, local conceptions : human rights and the politics of communication among the Burmese opposition-in-exile / by Lisa B Brooten. – 2003. XX, 396 l., illus. , bibliogr. l. 366-389. – Ohio Univ., Ph.D. thesis, March 2003. – DAI-A 645/02, p.322, Aug. 2003

Note: This study examines the impact of new information technologies (NITs) on the Burmese opposition movement-in-exile based in Thailand. The intent of the research is to determine whether NITs, primarily computers and the Internet, are helping to reduce, maintain, or intensify ethnic conflict within the movement. The study explores implications for political mobilization by examining what groups within the movement have access to which technologies, and how these groups understand and use global media and the discourses they produce. The research is a multi-sited ethnography conceived within the epistemological framework of standpoint theory, providing an empirically grounded exploration of the Burmese opposition movement in both its local and global contexts. It employs participant observation, in-depth interviews and discourse analysis to examine the impact of global communications at the local level. The work begins with an historical examination of the development of the modern state in Burma, which provides the context for exploring how militarization, gender and ethnicity have affected the development of nationalisms and conflict defined largely as ethnic in nature. This is followed by a discussion of how the history and current state of communications both inside and outside Burma constrain attitudes toward the possible uses of communications technologies and media among the opposition-in-exile. An overview of opposition media investigates the degree to which these media have opened a space for dialogue between groups. Interviews with opposition activists and refugees from Burma demonstrate how the Burmese regime's militaristic values are both perpetuated and countered within the opposition movement itself. The research finds that the introduction of NITs and patterns of foreign funding have reinforced existing hierarchies within the opposition movement. Finally, this study demonstrates how the local reinvents the global through the use of a global discourse of human rights which acts subtly but powerfully to shape social conventions within the movement. This results in an unstated hierarchy of human rights that perpetuates the inequitable gender and ethnic composition of the opposition political groups and the hierarchy of access and use of technologies among these groups.

XIV, 257 p., index, map, index, bibliogr. p. 230 to 246. – Based on author's thesis. – ISBN 0-8248-1909-8

Contents: 1. Contesting the Resource - 2. Pre-Scientific Forestry, 1824-1855 - 3. Scientific Forestry: Control and Resistance, 1856-1881 - 4. The Era of Expansion, 1882-1901 - 5. The Era of Consolidation, 1902-1922 - 6. Forests and Nationalism, 1923-1947 - 7. Restoring Order in the Forests, 1948-1994 - 8. Burmese Forest Politics in Comparative Perspective - Appendix. A Note on Forest Lands and Species.

Note: The history of Burma's forests is a paradox. No other country has been so closely identified in the popular imagination with its forests, yet the political processes that govern their fate are even today scarcely - understood. This book addresses the paradox, analysing the politics of forest management in Burma between 1824 and 1994. The central question is: what have been the political consequences of the advent of a Forest Department in 1856 on forest access and conflict in Burma? To answer it three notions, which serve as the analytical framework of the book, are differentiated: forests as a contested resource: the Forest Department as a resource manager; and conflicting perceptions of forest use.

Die Karen : Ideologie, Interessen und Kultur : eine Analyse der Feldforschungsberichte und Theorienbildung / Reiner Buergin. – 2000. 246 Bl., Bibliogr. Bl. 234-245. – Freiburg, Br., Univ, MA Diss. 2003.

Note: The ethnic category "Karen" encompasses very diverse groups of ethnic minorities. Most of the Karen speakers live in Burma, where they fight for national self-determination since the middle of the 20th century. In Thailand, together with various other ethnic minority groups, the Karen are categorized as "hill tribes" and are socially marginalized. The study analyses publications and field research reports on Karen groups up to the beginning 1990s. Against the background of the historic differentiation of the main Karen groups, the study is concerned with the constructions of general patterns of Karen culture as well as the differentiations between the various groups. Furthermore, theoretical conceptualizations discussed and disputed in the texts about Karen are analysed. The focus here is on the ancestor cults and matrilineal groups of the Karen as well as dependencies of ethnic identities on social and economic aspects of the Karen communities.

Burma, the South Africa of the 90s : conference report. – Ottawa: Canadian Centre for Foreign Policy Development, 1998. 4 p. – Conference held Nov. 16, 1996.

Note: Summarizes a conference on the theme of how students as consumers can contribute to Canadian foreign policy formation in the field of human rights and international trade, and how consumer issues can increase awareness in Canada about the crisis in Burma. The focus of the conference was to establish strategies for implementing selective purchasing legislation in educational institutions, compare student-led consumer activism campaigns in other countries, and give participants the basic analytic tools to allow them to launch an effective campaign. Principal recommendations made regarding Canadian foreign policy on Burma are also reviewed.

App. B. European Union common position.

Note: "Recognizing that democracy and the NLD cannot survive in Burma without the help of the United States and the international community, the Council-sponsored Independent Task Force on Burma sounds a clarion call for change. In response to the government's recent crackdown on the democratic opposition, the Task Force urges the United Nations to call for the immediate release of Aung San Suu Kyi and all political prisoners, and to impose sanctions on Burma, including bans both on new investment in Burma and on the importation of goods produced in Burma. The Task Force report also offers specific recommendations for U.S. policy in four areas: humanitarian assistance; promoting democracy, human rights, and the rule of law; narcotics control policy; and refugees, migrants, and internally displaced persons."

"Led by Mathea Falco, president of Drug Strategies and former assistant secretary of state for international narcotics matters, this bipartisan Task Force comprises members with a wide range of experience in international business, law, government, media, academia, public health, and human rights advocacy, among other areas. Its recommendations are intended to inform U.S. government action as well as to increase U.S. cooperation with other countries, especially in Asia, to bring about a long overdue political, economic, and social transformation of Burma." - book jacket.
