Reasons every one should deposit their Savings in Banks.

- 1. If money is kept in a private house it attracts thieves. If thieves come to take money they may take lives as well,
- 2. If money is kept in a house or in a ho'e in the ground the possessor earns no interest. On all money deposited with Banks, a depositor receives interest which is paid half-yearly,
- Money deposited in Banks is more readily available and gives the owner less trouble than money kept in a house or buried: because if he wants to make a payment, instead of opening boxes and counting coins and notes, he writes a cheque and the Bank takes all the trouble for him. Similarly if a depositor receives paymen by a cheque, instead of going a journey and collecting the money himself, he sends the cheque to his Banker who saves him the trouble without charge.
- 4. Keeping money on Deposit with a Bank costs nothing but on the contrary yields a bi-annual return Money kept in a house or buried costs much time and trouble, and if strong rooms or vaults are built or Iron Safes purchased the expense is considerable.
- 5. If the custom of depositing savings with Banks were generally adopted by natives of India, I calculate that they would in the aggregate be richer by about Rs. 1 crore per annum. This is computing deposits at an average of Re. 1 per head only, and allowing for an average return of interest at 3 per cent.

6. The Commercial Bank of India Limited, makes provision for all classes of investors. This Bank has the targest capital of any of the Banks in India which allow interest on similar terms and has Branch establishments in Bombay Calcutta, Karachi, London, Murree. Rawal Pindi, and Rangoon, the Head office being Warranted pure and free rom injurious ingredients NIZAM'S "GONORRHŒA CURE." Specific for Gonorrheea and Gleet.

WHAT IS IT. ?

This marvellous preparation has been now in the marked for a sufficient time to be extensively tried and the Proprietors are glad that almost universal approbation has been granted to it by those who have given it a trial. Sufferers from Gonorrhoea and Gleet are earnestly requested to try this preparation, in compounding of which none but the very purest drugs are used and after due consideration the Proprietors are prepared to refund full value, if a complete cure is not effected, by using their Gonorrhoea cure according to accompanied directions.

RESULT OF CHEMICAL ANALYSIS. Certified that I chemically examined the contents of a Phial labelled Nizam's Gonorrhea Cure and found it to be free from Mercurial and Arsenical preparation, and though it is a vegitable preparation, does not contain any poisonous ingredients.

AROMATIC RÉSIN

This is a chemical preparation, after considerable labour. Its efficacy as a destroyer of all poison in the air is simply marvellous. When burnt, it emits the air is simply marvellous. When burnt, it emits a delightful fragrance. Try it where malaria rages furiously or cholera is decimating the people; and you will be quite safe from the delitirious air and escape the epidemic. This has been proved times without number. It also drives off mosquitoes, flies, bugs, spiders and even snakes, which cannot put up with its smoke.

A CIDITY and DYSPEPSIA are the two most common disorders of the day, and very few are so retunate as to declare their immunity from these. In iew of the fact that though apparently harmless in the mbryon.c stage. Acidity and Dyspepsia shatter and undermine the constitution in the end and lead to it total wreckage, it must be held that they are dangerous in their insidiousnes.

After years of incessant toil and experiment, I have discovered a med rine which, I can confidently say, will cure the patient of acidity, and its worse stage of Dyspepsia in a short time, effectively and radically. However chronic and long-standing the complaint, however violent its attack, the Acidity Pill will give insant and permanent relief as has been proved in hundreds of cases, Here are a few unsolicited estimonials:

Babu, Bhobo Tosh Bannerjee, DePuty Magistrate of Dacca, writes under date of 6the March, 1898:—Many thanks for your Acidity Pills. I was suffering from Dyspepsia and Colic paina of the last 18 years. I tried many kinds of medicines to no effect. Some of them gave me temporary relief only for a day or two. But since 1 have been taking your pills (3 weeks or more) I I we not had any attack for a moment even during this time. The Pill is an excellent medicine for is nasty disease which is very painful. CALCUITA, MAY 1, 1898.

THE CONSCIENCE OF ENGLAND AWAKENED.

WRITES to us a correspondent from Englan 1 by the last mail, in reference to the recent repressive measures of the Government :-I can quite understand what you write in your journal about the depressing circumstances,—a haunting consciousness of danger and peril,—under which you have now to conduct your editorial duties. I feel so burdened with sadness at all the foolish measures of the Government, adopted in ignorance of the true state of affairs, and in panic. But I am sure, the Patrika will be able to continue to discharge its duties in loyalty to the law, and yet in fearless faithfulness to the highest interests

Yet, what a contrast, -a refreshing and posed entirely of Englishmen-Liberals, Tories and Unionists! The audiences are procured for Babu Ananda Mahan in a mys terious manner,-by whom it is hard to determine. He gets an invitation to address a meeting, organized, sometimes only, and sometimes mainly, to hear him; and sometimes advantage is taken of a gathering, to invite him to address the audience. And this is the way Babu Ananda Mohan suddenly finds himself face to face with Englishmen, utter strangers to him, eager to hear him about India. On arriving at the spot, Babu Ananda Mohan finds that a speech by him—the Hon. A. M. Bose, MA., of Bengal—has been extensively advertised. He is received with not only sympathy but respect. He is heard with attention in the beginning, and with raptures as he proceeds on, detailing the circumstances of his country. When Babu Ananda Mohan has done with his speech, the feeling that prevails among the audience is pride, for having such a people for subjects, to whom the speaker belongs, and shame for having neglected their affairs. A Resolution is then framed and unanimously adopted by the meeting, composed entirely of Englishmen. And what are thes: Resolutions like? Though our readers know what they are like, we shall give here, as a sample, the Resolution, unanimously adopted at a public meeting held at Great Harwood (Lancashire,) attended by

At the close of the address, Mr. J. W. Baron moved: "That this meeting strongly condemns the forward military policy, and the adoption of a repressive policy in India, and in particular, the imprisonment of British subjects without tria, and the passing of a law which is dangerous to the liberty of the Press. In the opinion of this meeting, such a policy is likely to compromise the honour and the interests of the Empire, and should be reversed at the earliest opportunity.' Mr. J. J. Riley seconded the resolution, and it was carried unanimously.—On the proposition of Mr. Milton Haydock, seconded by Mr. H. Smalley, a vote of thanks was passed to the speaker and the chairman.

Liberals, Tories and Unionists. Here it is: -

Of course, our readers understand the significance of the Resolution. As the meeting was a public one, attended by of such an assembly can be safely As we said, some of the suspected cases taken for a sense of England in refer-look very much like cases of real plague who make Parliament. Our wrongs are the happy tidings immediately through not known in England; and hence Lord the press. But this official announcement at all to make our grievances known to for the worst. the English people; for, we see, as a matter of fact, one individual alone, Babu Ananda Mohan, with his own humble resources, has already been able of Englishmen in leading position for the India. There is a peculiarity in these meetings, addressed by Babu Ananda Mohan. When a speaker, be he an Englishman or an Indian, undertakes to speak on Indian subjects, the average Englishman avoids him, and he is listened to by only those people who are either Anglo-Indians or are interested in the affairs of India. But, Babu Ananda Mohan find its way to give an assurance to the is perhaps the firs: Indian who has been able to invade the Englishman in his native jungle. Who is he? From which India does he come? Is he a black man? These are that the scare and the exodus would at the questions, many of the members who compose the audience of Babu plague is not such a dreadful scourge as Ananda Mohan, ask of one another. To our shame and to the shame of the English lakhs of men in two weeks. Our people, people, the notion of the average English- however, look upon this havoc with unconman about the people of India can be understood rom the remarks of a very respectable English paper, who introduced Mr. Tilak to his readers "as the scoundrel" who headed the fridis." To the average English-should be let alone, and, if Government canman, the Gentoe is a black thing "who not absolutely do without the policy of isoworships hideous idols." When such men first come across Babu Ananda Mohan, they are surprised to see that he is just like themselves, and has neither the thick lip, the curly hair, nor the black skin of the negro. When he begins to speak, the wonderment increases. "He speaks English," cries one delighted listener. "And he speaks correctly, too", remarks another. How his hearers feel when he has finished, is described by the Midland Mail who, it the 26th March:

Mr. Bose, who accompanied Mr. Maddison, is one of those cultured Indians who have acquired a thorough knowledge of the world's politics, and with whom the people of England have far too little acquaintance. To those who are apt to think of the people of India as so many uneducated "niggers," Mr. Bose's wonderful command of the English language, his accuracy of expression, his eloquence, and his complete and obvious knowledge of the subject with which he dealt, will cone as a

In the eight days, from the 28th of March to the 4th of April, Babu Ananda Mohan Bose had to address seven meetings, that is, every evening except one. They were: 28th March, at Great Harwood; 29th and 30th, at Liverpool; the 31st, at Cambridge; 1st, 3rd and 4th April, in London.

In a future issue, we may give a short ac count of the work done by Babu Ananda Mohan during the week, referred to above. The point has been, however, almost estab-

PLAGUE IN CALCUTTA.

WE neither approve nor disapprove of the reticence policy of the Government in respect of the alleged appearance of plague in Calcutta. It has done both good and harm. It is quite possible, nay, we have reasons to believe, that some of the suspected cases are cases of real plague. .But they may be solitary ones; and the Government may naturally feel that they do not proclaim the advent of the monster, as the appearance of a few swallows does not prove that summer is come. To declare plague is to assume serious responsibility. There are millions worth of goods lying at our port, ready for departure to Europe and America. A hasty declaration by Government may be ruinous to the owners of these goods, and merchants generally. The Government is thus justified in keeping silent as long as that is possible.

The policy of reticence has, however, done this harm. It has very much intensified the scare which the report of the first few suspected cases created in Calcutta; for, the people naturally connect this reluctance on the part of the Government to disclose the actual situation, with plague having really entered our city. And the result is the unprecedented stampede. Indeed, if the exodus continues at this rate, then, Calcutta, like Bombay, will be denuded of three-fourths of its population in the probably, resistance to authority. How much course of a few days. Government can, however, no longer keep the public in a terrible state of suspense; and the following that have remained unchanged for ages? letter, addressed to us by the Secretary of the Plague Commission, will show that His the Plague Commission, will show that His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor will to-day of Bengal, who has had considerable a couple of days, may, nowever, pronounce declare the policy of the Government from his seat in the Council :--

Sir, In reply to your letter of the 27th instant, received by me to-day, asking for information as to the policy which Government intends adopting, should plague appear in Calcutta, I am to inform you that a statement on the subject will be made in the Council

Lord George Hamilton, see declare that plague has really come. Indeed, cure of his packed majority, is quite wil- if there were reasonable doubts about these ling to make the House of Commons cases, after a thorough bacteriological exaresponsible for these measures. But the mination by Dr. Haffkine, the Government opinion, recorded above, is of the people would have been too glad to proclaim George Hamilton and his officials are so from the Council Chamber is ominous; and irresistible. And it is not a great feat the public should, therefore, be prepared

Of course, we cannot say as to the character of the policy which will be adopted by the Government to combat the plague in Calcutta. We can, however, place the views to enlist the sympathy of many thousands of the Indian public on the subject before the authorities. When we said that the people dread the remedy much more than the disease, we did not exaggerate in the least. The cause of this scare and stampede is not the plague, but the fear that the affected people will be hastened to the isolation hospital, and their relations, to the segregation camp. Indee I, if the Government could effect that segregation would not be resorted to, or at least, home segregation would be allowed, then we can guarantee once cease to exist. With all its horrors, cholera. A cholera epidemic will decimate cern; and they are not likely to wring their hands and beat their breasts if it be their lot to live in the midst of an epidemic of lation, it should be pleased to permit them to convert their own houses into isolation hospitals.

In this prayer, the natives of the soil cannot be held unique or unreasonable. When the method of segregation was first started in Bombay and Poona, the inhabitants of those places strongly resented the interference with their timehonoured customs and cherished notions. his hearers feel when he has limshed, is described by the Midland Mail who, it appears, never before came across an Indian sult, as everybody knows, was disastrous in a city, and that we must look for some

But, we plague as we deal with small-pox, by sending would have gladly put up with these deplomany of the people, living there or thereabouts, rable results if it could be shown that the as can be induced to submit to the operation. rable results if it could be shown that the policy of the Bombay Government had In Haffkine's prophylactic we have a vaccine succeeded in stopping the plague. The outcome was, however, quite the reverse. Instead of doing any good, the policy only brought untold sufferings in its train. It now stands condemned by all who are competent to pass an opinion on this affords much better prospect of controlling the subject. Dr. J. S. Weir, Health Officer of that has been suggested. Bombay, in his recent lecture on plague,

If there was any hope that the policy pur-sued would prevent the spread of plague, whatever sacrifices it might entail, ought to be endured. But there is little hope that any of the measures being adopted, will prevent the spread of the disease. Quarantine is right but is there any hope that quarantine can prevent the spread of a disease carried by rodents. and, of all rodent, by that parasite of men, the tat? If the measures, now taken, failed with hope-inspiring contrast—is presented to us by the attitude of so many audiences before which Babu Ananda Mohan Bose had had which Babu Ananda Mohan Bose had had is a very simple one. opposition to Government; and I would ask Has it been seriously considered what the effect must be throughout the country, of the humiliating sight of officials chased for their lives by excited mobs? The Health Depart-ment might, at any time, either in 1896 or in the following year, have caused a riot: the slightest indiscretion would have excited the people into frenzy, but the policy was directed by common-sense, and the measures were applied according to the temper of the

Even if every human case were discovered at the outset and disinfection carried out in the most approved manner, I doubt whether it would be effective, as it appears that the infection is carried by rats, and perhaps other agencies which we are not yet aware of and even if the whole building were reduced to ashes, the probability is that some of the infected rats would escape, and carry the infection into other dwellings. Se regation is likewise dependent on notification, and has in my opinion equally failed. * * * * oriental city where the entire population is against it. It will be said-Are we to sit with folded hands? I remember a story of the Duke of Wellington when crossing the Channel in a great storm. The Captain came to tell him soldier, "I shall go and lie down." The Duke hands and wasting his strength. We, who see unmoved a destruction of life from poverty in the long years, much greater than from plague, do not cry out to do that which cannot be done, nor we weep because men lot to live in the midst of plague cases, must die. We accept the inevitable law of They cannot, however, bear to see not be avoided.

If any Indian had spoken in the above strain, he would have been put down for a superstitious barbarian by a section of the Anglo-Indian community. Moulvi Syed Abdul Jubber said that plague was a visitation from above, and that, therefore, human efforts were of very little avail in combating it; and the Hon'ble Mr. Turner poured out a vial of ridicule upon his head. But what Dr. Weir says, is not very much different from what the pious Moulvi declared. Man is a very puny creature. In spite of his vaunted civilization and enlightenment,

Officer of Calcutta recommends the same lowing extract from his Note shows:-

The conclusion I draw from all this, is that the system of notification, isolation and disin-against plague of proved efficacy which, as at present ascertained, reduces the mortality between 80 and 90 per cent. There is, moreover, considerable evidence to show that the protection lasts through at least one outbreak, and probably longer. I am convinced that in epidemic of plague than any other measure sought to be tried upon the prisoners in regardless of the feelings and the cherished Bombay. They would not, however, agree notions of the people. The result was to be inoculated. Mr. Tilak was then in that while plague increased by leaps and the Bombay jail, and he was requested bounds, the unfortunate masses, unable to show the way. He bravely submitted to the operation, and now tens of thousands have been vaccinated with the serum. The cold and the operation of the cold and unsympathetic policy of the Committee, rose against the authorities and committed We have not the slightest doubt that, if dreadful acts during the riot of 9th March the Government of Bengal accepts the last. Nor was this all. A sum of twentyalternative proposal of the Health Officers of Bombay and Calcutta, and offers it to Committee; and it is being openly declared the people, they will gladly prefer it to the policy of segregation and isolation.

HEAVEN protect Calcutta from such a dire calamity as plague! The few suspected cases that have occurred, mean nothing particular. Fever accompanied with in pacifying the infuriated people and swelling on the groins and terminating fatally, is not a rare thing in this Province. It is a remarkable fact that Bengal has never been visited by what is now known as the bubonic plague. The absence of any mention of this malady in the Charak and other renowned Hindu medical works, which, in their scientific arrangement of diseases, are in no way inferior to any in Europe, is a proof positive of the statement, being left in a virulent state to spread the noted above. It is said that plague reappears only in those places where it had once made its appearance. From this point of view, Bengal is safe from an internal outbreak, though, of course, the baccili may be carried here by human or other lition of the Plague Committee, which has agencies from any of the affected parts of the Empire, and the disease planted. Two other favourable circumstances we noticed the other day. The general health of the town is remarkably good; but, when Bombay was It is, I am convinced, impossible to carry out a measure like segregation in a large and other diseases had been committing a dreadful havoc among its population. Then again, the sure precursors of the monsterthe dead rats - have not been discovered in any part of Calcutta. All these tend to show that plague may yet be as far off from this more then is it hopeless to expect that it city as it has been during the last two years.

Dr. HAFFKINE of Bombay, who is now analysing the serum of the suspicious cases experience of plague cases in Bombay, them as real cases of plague; and, in that has also no faith in the policy of isolation. case, Government will have no option but to It will thus be seen that it is not native declare that the monster has entered into our perversity which is opposed to the system, city. The question now is: what policy would but scientists and experts, who can speak be adopted here, should our worst fears be on the subject with authority. What we realized? Indeed, our office is being beg to submit is that, when such medical besieged daily by anxious people, enquirauthorities, as are noted above, are unani- ing of us for information; but, when mous in their condemnation of the treat- the Government is reticent, we cannot ment of plague cases thorough segregation enlighten the public on the subject, one camps and isolation hospitals, why should way or the other. Would segregation be introduced? It not, good and well Dr. Weir concluded his lecture with these but should it be necessary, in what form would it be enforced? Sir Alexander Mackenzie allowed home-segregation in Patna: would the same concession be made to the people of Calcutta? Not to conceal the that there was no hope; then said the great real truth, people, rightly or wrongly, dread the segregation more than the disease itself. did not run about the deck, wringing his Piague is not such a terrible monster as chotera or small-pox. The Bengalees can face these diseases with equanimity, and they are not likely to lose their neads, it it is their lot to live in the midst of plague cases, nature, and bear with a destiny which can-their dear ones, specially their ladies, taken away to hospital and treated there. If the Governmen, however, cannot absolutely do without segregation, then, all they pray for, is that the privilege of home-segregation may be allowed to them, so that they may have the consolation of nursing the sick members of their families, and closing their eyes, if death overtakes them, in their own private residences.

WE doubt not, the experiences of Bombay would be utilised by the authorities in Bengal, if we are visited by plague. his knowledge of the sanitary laws is not Let us summarise these experiences, much be ter than that of the savages of the When plague first appeared in Bombay, wilds of Africa. It is said that dirt is one of the Bombay Municipality undertook to the causes of the plague. It is, however, a check its progress. It was, however, found remarkable fact that the halalakhores and that the Corporation was not competent to the scavengers in Bombay, who, like our cope with the disease. The Health Committee was invested with unlimited Committee was invested with unlimited Officer of Calcutta recommends the same powers, and they exercised them to their hearts' content. The result of the experiment was most startling. The orthodox notion among the authorities, generally speaking, is, that if the officials were not obstructed by the representatives of the people, and were entrusted with supreme powers and Joges Chandra Mittra has been an ample resources, they could work miracles. Indeed, it was given out that the plague business having been transferred from a semi-popular Board like the Bombay Corporation to that of a purely official body like the Plague Committee, the plague would be stamped out in no time and the millennium would arrive in Bombay.

THE Doctor in Gil Blas knew only one remedy for all diseases, and that was, hot water and bleeding. The average official here has also one remedy for all distem-pers to which society is heir to, namely, The vaccine, alluded to above, was first to adopt drastic and irritating methods, seven lakhs of rupees has been spent by the by the Bombay papers that this huge amount has been simply thrown into water.

> THE riot opened the sight of the Bombay Government. Lord Sandhurst appealed to the leaders of the community to help him eradicating the pestilence. They cheerfully responded to the call; and through their co-operation, not only has perfect peace been restored in, but plague nearly driven from, Bombay. So, what the Plague Committee, with limitless resources at its disposal, and armed with powers from the crown of its head to the sole of its foot, failed to do in several months, the Government, with the help of the people, have been able to accomplish in three or four weeks. The Bombay Corporation is also having its revenge upon the Plague Committee. It addressed a letter to the Bombay Government, requesting the demoshowed its incapacity in such marked manner and whose policy has proved so disastrous, and entrust it with the charge of dealing with the plague. The request has been acceded to, and the Corporation has resumed its duty of preventing the plague.

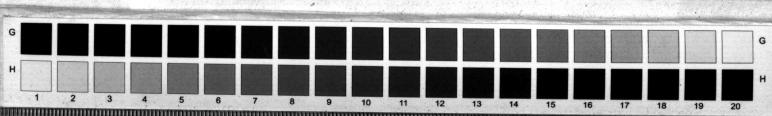

> THE Calcutta Corporation, as it now stands, is more representative in its character than the Municipality of Bombay; and judging from the experiences, noted above, the Government, we submit, should repose greater trust in the elected Commissioners than the members of the Plague Committee, who, though all estimable persons, are officials and not at all in touch with the people in general. In spite of their excellent motives, it is not possible tor them to enter into real popular sentiments and feetin s. In dealing with matters affecting the daily domestic life of a Hindu or a Mussalman, there is every chance of an official, however benevolent, well-intentioned and experienced he may be, committing blunders and defeating the very object he is anxious to obtain. The failure of the Bombay Plague Committee is a strong argument against the Calcutta Municipal Bill, which proposes to take away all powers from elected representatives, and vest them in an official Chairman and a body of twelve gentlemen, where popular element is nil.

WE are glad to learn that the good people of Dacca have completed the arrangement for the holding of the Bengal Provincial Conference this year in their city, and that invitation letters have been issued to the leading men of the country over the signatures of the well-known pleaders of Dacca,-Babus Troylucko Nath Bose, Ananda Chander Roy and Roma Kanta Nundy. The Conference will sit for three days during the ensuing Mohurrum holidays, that is to say, on the 30th and 31st May, and 1st June next. Elsewhere is published a list of subjects to be brought forward for discussion at the Conference, as well as a number of instructionsmeant for the guidance of the delegates, Each delegate is required to bring a duly, attested delegation-certificate, and avail of any of the two steamers, which daily run from Goalundo to Naraingunge. As regards the matters to be discussed, the Provisional Committee have, evidently through an oversight, omitted to include in the list the most important of the subjects in which the people of the Muffasil are interested, we mean, the Road Cess question. This formed, as it ought, the chief subject for discussion both at the Krishnaggur and Natore Conferences. It is also a debatably immune from the pestilence.

Both Dr. Weir and Dr. Cook, however, propose a substitute for segregation and isolation. Says the Health Officer of Bomnot. We think, they ought to be taken up and arrangements should be made by the Conference for submitting petitions to Parliament on these subjects, signed by the millions of Bengal. Every district should warmly and thankfully respond to the call of Dacca. Indeed, the band of patriotic gentle men who have undertaken to hold the Conference, are bringing it about under tre mendous difficulties; and they naturally expect the hearty co-operation of their brethren in other districts.

WE are very glad to learn that

HIS HONOUR the Lieutenant-Governor paid a visit to H. H. the Maharajah of Durbhanga on the 25th. The Maharajah had been slightly indisposed; and the object of the visit, we believe, was to enquire after his health. Sir John Woodburn has, by this act, given another proof of his kindly nature and his sincere desire to be in touch with the leaders of our community. This visit is specially significant, as it was paid out of a pure feeling of affection for This visit is specially significant, as it was paid out of a pure feeling of affection for the premier Zemindar of Bengal.

THE legacy which Sir Alexander Mackenzie has left behind him, we mean, the Calcutta Municipal Bill, is a wonderful measure in many respects. It contains 668 sections and 20 schedules, which occupy two hundred and fifty-two pages of the Calcutta Gazette. Has the reader any idea what this means? Well, if these pages were spread lengthwise, they would cover a space of 154 cubits! We have, of course, Imperial Acts which relate to the whole of India, such as the Penal Code, the Criminal Procedure Code, the Civil Procedure Code, &c; but they are mere pigmies before this grand product of the joint brains of Sir A. Mackenzie and Mr. Risley, though it concerns only the petty municipal affairs of a few lakhs of people. As a legislative enactment, it is perhaps the greatest wonder in the world; for, we are assured by lawyers that there is no country which can boast of having a law-book which is even half as big as this Bill. Then again, in all Municipal towns, the practice is that the Legislature provides for them certain general principles of law, leaving the details to be settled by the members of the Municipalities. The Municipal Act of Calcutta, now in force, which is a pretty large volume, followed this custom to a large extent, and left the Chairman and the Commissioners to frame byelaws, from actual experience, for the management of their affairs. But the authors of the present Bill consider the Act as "vague and defective", and think that they are quite competent to lay down rules for the guidance of the Municipality, though they are as ignorant of its internal administration as any outsider. The result is that the residents of Calcutta find, to their consternation, that in many of their daily domestic concerns, they are going to be literally bound hand and foot by the Legislature; and that they shall not be able to move one inch without breaking some law or other, and thus making themselves liable to severe pose of burial or cremation until a certificate of death has been granted (a) by a licensed medical practitioner who attended the deceased in his last illness, or (b), if no such practitioner so attended, by a Registrar appointed under section 546. The present custom is that as soon as a man dies, his body is removed to the burial or burned on the production of a certificate of Ideath from the Sub-Registrar who resides near the burial-ground or the burning ghat. This puts the parties to no trouble, whereas all the particulars of the disease from which death occurred, are taken down in the prescribed form of the death-register by the Registrar. But all this is to be changed. Mr. Smithers, City Magistrate of Patna, is one who, like the late Mr. Phillips, has no objection to explain law to the Judges. Mr. Phillips' law, however, did not meet with the approval of the Judges of the High Court. And Mr. Smithers' law is also, in the opinion of the High Court, not above reproach. There is an able Judge who presides over the sessions at Patna; but Mr. Smithers thinks himself abler than he. And, hence, they cannot always agree. > THE Hindu, after quoting the Minute of Sir J. Woodburn on the Simultaneous Examination question, observes that such is the ruler that Bengal has got. Now it must be borne in mind that the antecedents of of his character. Let us see how such estimates have proved deceptive. Sir C. He had propos ed to make breach of contracts a penal offence; and, as this was what the indimasters for having allowed people to die of famine in Orissa, and removed. But in this he was only the victim of a blunder. On the other hand, when Sir A. Eden was announced as the ruler of this Province, there was rejoicing. Indeed, Lord Northbrook had a notion that his chief duty was to please the people, and he nominated Sir A. Eden only because Bengal wanted him. But, because a journalist refused to write to order, he conceived the idea of gagging the vernacular press. Calling himself a friend of the Zemindars, he introduced the Public World Control of the Public lic Works Cess. Indeed, neither as a ruler nor as a private citizen, he left anything fragrant behind him. The honest course is to give a new ruler a warm welcome, and not to receive as Sir G. Campbell was, when he was sent as a Magistrate, immediately after the suppression of the Mutiny by his people, with a couple of cannons! A warm admirer of Sir J. THE PHILOSOPHER AND CIGAR. - A Professor of Philosophy in a certain Rhenish town received a large parcel a few days ago containing six boxes of cigars accompanied by the following note. "We beg leave to send you six boxes of our excellent cigars. We have no doubt that you will be pleased with the parcel and will commend us to your friends Kindly remit us the amount of the invoice six marks per box - by postal order." To this the philosopher replied immediately: "I have the honor to send you herewith a dozen dissertations, which will no doubt please you Should you desire any more, I hold them t your disposal. The price is three marks, per copy." By return of post the Professor received the following laconic epistle: "Kindly return our cigars. Enclosed find cost of carrige and packing. We are sending back your dissertations."

THE Ameer, it appears, is susceptible to flattery. Miss Hamilton told, how a man whom he had sentenced have his ears cut off for some he had sentenced have his ears cut off for some indiscretion, happened to be a friend of his Chief Secretary, who ingeniously averted the mutilation by offering to perform the task himself, provided it might be done in the Ameer's presence. To this he assented, whereupon the Secretary mentioned, that he had never executed this form of punishment before, and would His Highness show how much was to be removed. The Ameer passed his hands over both members, whereupon the Secretary turned round and reminded him of a passage in the Koran to the effect, that anything age in the Koran to the effect, that anything touched by the representative of the Almighty became sacred, and so the cars were saved.

nistration; in fact, they should consider themselves very lucky in having him. They should not only respect, honour and obey, but likewise look upon him as a friend in need, and help him, to the best of their ability: for, the relations between a Governor and the governed are relative and reciprocal.

Now this is sound advice, and we mean to follow it. We would regard him with confidence and trust so long he does not compel us to change our opinion by indubitable proofs of his perversity. And thus when India wrote with misgivings about Sir J. Woodburn, we were led to enter a protest. The correspondent referred to above, says: "If men, knowing Sir J. Woodburn thoroughly, are attached to him, others, not knowing him at present, should rest assured, etc.," We too shared the misgivings, given expression to, in Bengal, when Sir John's appointment was announced. But men who knew him intimately, such as Messrs. Charlu, Chitnavis, Ameer Hossein and others, assured us that Bengal was lucky in having Sir J. Woodburn for its ruler. We can trust the JUTE CULTIVATION IN ASSAM. -On the occasion of Mr. Cotton's address to the Bengal Chamber of Commerce last year on the development of Assam, Mr. G. Nairn directed paticular attention to the question of jute cultivation and its possibilities. He threw out several suggestions, and among them that of an enquiry as to whether the Assam Valley was suitable for jute cultivation. Mr. Cotton at once had enquiries instituted, and a very full and able report, appearing as a special supplement to the Assam Gazette, has been submitted. Briefly stated, it shows that the waste lands in the Brahmaputra Valley, by far the largest portion available in Assam, are well adapted for the cultivation of jute so far as the composition of the soil is concerned. Other parts of Assam are not so well suited, particularly the Surma Valley.

THE L. G'S REPLY.—In replying to the deputation of the Mysore Family on Thursday, His Honour the Lieutenant-Governor spoke in Hindustani and said to the effect that he thanked them for the kindness of their address. He said that the address rightly recognized his sympathy with their family, some of whom he had known for many years. Wherever people were in trouble, it was the duty of the Government to sympathise with them and to help them. He was aware that some branches of the family their circumstances were not so favourable as could be desired, but he was extremely pleased to see that some of their leading members had already prepared them-selves for association in the work of the ad-ministration. The most prominent of these was his old friend, Prince Bukhtyar Shah, and he welcomed the assurance that others of them were similarly making themselves ready for participation in the duties of local government. They might rest assured that any assistance he could personally give in this matter he would always gladly give.

OBSCENE LITERATURE. -At the Police Cour on Thursday, Mr. A. J. Keene was charged by Inspector Faria with selling, distributing, and possessing at 1-2, Weston's Lane, an obscene pamphlet. Mr. Hume, Government Solicitor, appeared for the prosecution, and in opening the facts said that the accused was charged under sections 292 and 293 of the Indian Penal Code. The pamphlet contained a catalogue of obscene books, which were advertised for sale by him. Inspector Gupta called on the accused in disguise and purchased from him a few copies of some of the books. Inspector Faria then went to the house, and in making a search found upwards of twenty thousand specimens of obscene literature, pictures, French cards, and transparent cards, all of which were seized and taken charge of by the police, who then went to 11 Kopalitolla, to the printing press of one Arson, and made a seizure of the proof sheets and setup types of the indecent pamphlet. Some evidence was recorded, and the case adjourned to the 13th proximo, the accused being enlarged on bail of Rs. 500.

APRIL 30.

PANIC IN THE TOWN.

WITHIN the living memory almost the entire population of Calcutta had never presented so panic-stricken an appearance as it did yesterday. The talk everywhere, in the streets, in the tram cars, in the parlour, in the courts, in the offices, in fact in all places, was the "plague" and the attendant evils it will bring on. The exodus of the East Bengal people and the Marwaris, who live in Calcutta mostly for trade purposes, which had commenced from day before yesterday, received an impetus from the panic-stricken appearance of the city. The ghariwallas had a roaring trade and as in the advesities of the people generally lie their opportunities, they generally doubled and in some cases trebled their fare. The Railway Companies also made a very brisk business, none of the through trains having gone out without full complement of passengers. Some of the trains were even crowded. It appears that the exodus will continue with greater energy to-day and to-morrow, which is considered the last day on which the people will be allowed to leave the city unmolested. The prevail-ing notion is that the Government will place the city under quarantine from Monday, when no one will be allowed to leave the city without at least a week's detention in camp. On enquiry we learned that this panic was mainly due to the "ominous silence" which the Government observed with regard to the result of the bacteriological examination on the first case which occurred about twelve days ago. It is considered that as the Government has taken no steps to allay the public feeling in the matter, the result of the examination was unfavourable and that the cases were really plague cases. The comparatively sober portion of the population who are not given to panic, also earnestly wish to be relieved from the state of suspense It is also rumoured that Government have caused a medicine to be prepared and which is being administered on the patients removed to hospital invariably with fatal results. With utmost attempt we could not disabuse the minds of our informants of this wrong notion.

TREATMENT OF "PLAGUE"

CASES. The "Plague" cases are being treated now in three hospitals, the Medical College Hospital, the Campbell Medical College, and the Isolation Hospital at Manicktolah. As regards the Medical College Hospital suspected plague cases are being admitted as "scepticae-mia with enlarged Iglands." In this week some 7 or 8 cases have been admitted, of which 4 or 5 died. All these cases had very high fever accompanied with glandular swellings especially at the groins. But scepticaemia is a generic term for all poisoning cases including the bubonic plague, and it is rumoured that the post mortem examinations had disclosed the development of the internal signs which such cases are apt to indicate. It is particularly to be noticed that the deaths were rapid and no treatment could reduce the temperature or the swellings of the glands. The patients are both natives and Eurasians. Admission of such cases in this Hospital is optional with the patient. The number of out-door patients have been reduced by half. presumably owing to the panic. We must tender our hearty thanks to the authorities for admitting such cases in the Medical College Hosptal.

Dead rats have been found in certain places. Day before yesterday a number of rats was found dead in the godowns of Messrs. Mackinon Maskenzie and Co The godowns were thoroughly limewashed and disinfected. Some rats were also found dead in Messrs. Kilburn and Co.'s godowns, but on enquiry it appeared that at the time of limewashing the place several rats were found and killed. In the Municipal market, however, no rats were found dead as the Statesman has said. The Municipality have been however lime-washing and disinfecting most of the shops here and the contents of the shops were all brought out. A rumour was afloat yesterday that the Municipal Market was going to be closed for a week. There is no foundation, however, for the rumour.

On the 26th April one Fakir Ghose, Goala by caste, got simple fever with glandular swellings. He is a sweet-meat seller, of about 30 years of age, residing at 21-5, Shambazar Street. The fever is reported to have resulted from his having bathed at 3 A. M. on the previous night in the dirty water of the Municipal reservoir. Anyhow the police got scent, and a 6 P. M. the following afternoon besieged his house and the Municipal doctor Mr. R. L. Bysack was called on to examine the patient. He, however, declared the case to be not of Dr. Dyson was present at the meeting.

AT Thursday's Municipal meeting, Dr. Dyson gave two pieces of excellent advice, one of which is never touch a dead rat, but call the sweeper to take it up with tongs and put it outside, and then cremate it with kerosine. He also said never raise the dust in a suspected house, but always begin by watering it to keep the dust down, the bacillus being mainly in the floors, as we ourselves pointed out some time ago.

THE PLAGUE.

A LAHORE telegram informs that plague has broken out in the Kangra Valley, two deaths having occurred in a village near Palanpore.

As a temporary measure the Lieutenant Governor has prescribed for the Port of Chittagong a number of rules for quarantine against plague and medical inspection, isolation, observation and surveillance of persons suspected of being infected with plague These rules took effect from Wednesday.

THERE were 1,116 deaths in Bombay during the past week, being 86 less than in the preceding week, 446 more than in the week ending 27th of April, 1897, and 199 more than in the corresponding period of the previous five years. The death-rate was 69 73. There were 442 deaths from plague, being 99 less than in the previous we k. the previous week.

In a Madras Government order just issued there is a very discouraging report made on the supposed richness of the Salem iron beds. Mr. Middlemiss, Superintendent of the Geological Survey, reports that they contain only 40 per cent. of iron instead of sixty per cent. according to previous authorities. Referring to the Kurnool iron ores it is reported that it is improbable that a profitable iron ore industry could be established in Madras.

THE plague has reached Darjiling and there was considerable panic there on Tuesday, according to the local paper. The Civil Surgeon and the Deputy Commissioner were hard at work fixing sites for a plague hospital and segregation camp. Ghoom station is to be vigorously guarded against the ruthless intruder.

THE weather at the Chausa plague camp is exceptionally hot for this time of year, the thermometer registering 1078 in the shade. As an extra precaution against plague, all railway tickets purchased at stations from Beas to Ludiana are now punched with a special mark, which enables the plague officials to determine which of the passengers come from plague-affected districts.

There were no

deaths from plague.

A LAHORE telegram, dated the 26th, says:
At a village near the town of Nawashahr, a riot has occurred. The ring-leaders have been arrested. Details of the riot are that Mr. Butler, an Assistant Commissioner on plague duty, received orders to turn out Changel, a plague-infected village, and sent a tahsildar, whom the villagers drove out. Mr. Butler arriving with a Deputy Inspector and twelve constables, found the people extremely mena cing, and withdrew, his force being insuffi-cient. Colonel Rennick, the Deputy Com-missisoner of Jullundur, eventually settled the disturbance.

THE MANCHURIAN RAILWAY.

RUSSO-CHINESE AGREEMENT.

A DESPATCH from her Majesty's Ambassador at St Petersburg, enclosing the agreement concluded be tween the Chinese Government and the Russo-Chi nese Bank for the construction of the Manchurian nese Bank for the construction of the Manchurian Railway is issued. It states that on the strength of the agreement, which was concluded on Aug. 27 (Sept. 8) 1896, a company is to be formed, under the mame of the "Eastern Chinese Railway Company," "for the construction and working of a railway within the confines of China, from one of the points on the western borders of the Province of Wei-Lun-Tsian to one of the points on the eastern borders of the Province of the Provinc western borders of the Province of Wel-Lun-Isian to one of the points on the eastern borders of the Province of Chirin, and for the construction of this railway with those branches which the Imperial Russian Government will construct to the Chinese frontier from Trans-Baikalia and Southern Ussuri lines." The company is empowered, subject to the connection with the railway or independent of it, coal mines, "as also to exploit in China other encoal mines, "as also to exploit in China other enterprises mining, industrial, commercial." For the working of these enterprises which may be independent of the railway, the company is to keep separate accounts. It is provided that the formation of the company shall be undertaken by the Russo-Chinese Bank, and that all rights and obligations will be transferred to it in regard to the construction and working of the line.

TERM OF CONCESSION.

In virtue of the agreement, the company is to retain possession of the Chinese Eastern Railway during the course of eighty years f om the day of the opening of traffic along the whole line"; but, among other obligations, it is stipulated that the chinese Eastern Railway is bound to establish and maintain a telegraph along the whole extent of the line and to connect it with the telegraph wire of the Russian adjoining railways; and to receive and dispatch without delay through telegrams sent from one frontier station of the line to another, as also telegrams sent from Russia to China, and conversely." It is further provided that all transit conveyance of passengers and goods and the transmission of telegrams, will be established by agreement of the company with the Russian Government, together with the maximum tariffs, which cannot be raised without the consent of the Russian Government during the whole term of the concession. Within these limits the tariffs of direct communication, both for railway carriage and telegrams, will be fixed by the board of management of the company on the stength of a mutual agreement with the Russian Minister of Finances. The Russian letter and parcel post, as also the officials accompanying the same, are to be carried by the railway free of charge. to another, as also telegrams sent from Russia to China, and conversely." It is further provided that charge.

PRIVILEGES GRANTED TO THE RAILWAY, &C.

During the concession the following privileges granted to the railway by the Chinese Government granted to the railway by the Chinese Government will remain in force:—(a) Passengers' luggage, as also goods, carried in transit from one Russ an station, shall not be liable to any Chinese Customs duties, and shall be exempt from all internal Chinese dues and taxes. (b) The rates for the carriage of passengers and goods for telegrams, &., shall be free from all Chinese taxes, and dues. (c) Goods imported from Russia into China by rail and exported from China to Russia in the same manner shall tray respectively an import or export and exported from China to Russia in the same manner shall pay respectively an import or export Chinese duty to the extent of one-third less as compared with the duty imposed at Chinese sea-port custom-houses. (d) If goods imported by the railway are destined for conveyance inland they shall in such case be subject to payment of transit duty to the extent of one-half of the import duty levied on them, and they shall then be exempted from any additional imposts. Goods which shall not have paid transit duty shall be liable to payment of all established internal carriers and likin daes. In regard to the place of acquisition of materials for the requirements of the railway, the comany is not to be liable to any limitations. If materials be obtained beyond the confines of Russia they will, on importation through fines of Russia they will, on importation through Russian territory, be freed from payment of Russian Customs duties.

THE SCANDAL ON THE 199TH.

When it became known that the 199th had digraced itself before the enemy had been ordered bacto depot work, practised artists in other regimen furnished up their armoury of unprintable languag called to mind some neglected terms of objurgation and prepared to enjoy themselves. An orderly of the inculpated regiment being sent with a message camp some days afterwards received the confidence originally intended for his comrades at large. Afthe he had been, in the opinion of the camp, sufficient chuffled, the camp, true to the British principle of fair play, gave him an opportunity for reply. The orderly, instead of clothing himself with cursing a with a garment, as the camp anticipated, preferre to remain silent, to look several degrees wiser that his assailants, and having partaken copiously beer, to return without remark to the ignominous servitude of depot duty.

beer, to return without remark to the ignomino servitude of depot duty.

The disappointed camp pondered this matter that Orderly Hanaghan's fine command language had deserted him, and on an occasic calling for its choicest flowers, was unthinkable and the mere circumstances having nothing to see would certainly not have kept him silent. Rath would it have stimulated him to higher flight. The 199th had obvious causes to be ashamed itself. Vet the worthy messenger had been far as possible from bearing an appearance shame. The camp conferred on the subject, are decided that their was something odd behind at this; also that the something odd was a priva concern of the 199th's, and, pending revelation had better be so treated.

The camp was right. But I am moving to fast; the disgrace of the 199th needs to be explained.

The enemy had occupied some cover, at perha 600 yards' distance, and was making himself ve objectionable with riffes of a suspiciously le trajectroy acquired let us not inquire how. I had been gently shelled all the morning, witho any very apparent profit, and the 199th was throw forward in the post of honor, to try what a litt cold steel might bring forth. The 199th crept o in accordance with the principles of the new attaformation, until that psychological moment who the officers call on their men, and the whole lit is bidden to charge with the bayonet and take the enemy's position, vice the enemy retired deceased.

The regiment behaved splendidly up to this psy chological moment. And then the horror, the shame disgrace occurred. Instead of charging, impetuous joyful, with difficulty restrained, as its custom was, the 199th calmly lay down, and laughed at its officers: The Colonel swore. The Colonel entreated. The Colonel (it is said) prayed. He flung all the terms of rebuke in a vocabulary not discreditable to his power of recollection, at the regiment behind him. And a every epithet, at every reproach, at every entreaty, the regiment sent up fresh peals of ribald laughter, until the Colonel, swearing more volubly than ever (bette men in his plight have broken their swords and criedlike children), bude the 199th retire, for a hemorrhagiset of cowardly hobgoblins unworthy of a black man theological condemnation—or words to that effect.

Whereupon, the 199th retreated with ostentation went to the base minus a colonel—resigned.

The 251st, hitherto sharing with the 193rd to work of protecting the base, went joyously to to front in the room of the disgraced regiment. The number of black eyes and swollen lips belonging the 193rd and the 199th—both of them—during the next few days was large; but the big fists of the 199th prevailed in the end, and remark on the last fiaseo was escheved by the judicious. It was at the period that the notion occurred to me of taking trip to the base of operations. rip to the base of operations.

For the circumstances were unusual. That 199th could be stricken with panic before this or other enemy was an idea not to be entertained other enemy was an idea not to be entertained a moment. The exact circumstances of the retre were not at this time known to me; but had been quite sure, even befor? Hanaghai visit to the camp, that some explanation existed also that it was vain to seek the confidence of the ethlegmatic warrior. I wormed myself instead in the society of a corneral not unaccompined with

The 199th had rebelled. This is the long of t story and the short. There are many known wa in which a commanding officer can make hims objectionable to his regiment. There are ma ways, too, in which he can make that regime an exceedingly unpleasant one to belong to. Col Asterisk (as my informant avarred, with empland qualifications too numerous to be set do had exhausted them all, and added innovations had exhausted them all, and added innovations his own contriving. Now, of all the tyrannies whi still lurk in this world, the tyranny of a colonel and of a sea captain are the most intoleable, and the most intolerant of redress. Therefor when matters had grown too bad (in the opini of the 199th) to be brone, company took coun with company, and in deep conclave the plot for getting rid of Colonel Asterisk, where of success has been recorded was evolved.

I am inclined to think that matters must hav been pretty bad in the 199th before they reacher this stage; for a regiment does not likely brin almost irretrivable disgrace upon itself. The ver last resort has to be reached; men will bear a nearly as possible all that can be borne before the reach the point when such a plot as this come within range of pratical politics; and the 199th had a fine record to smirch, mind you.

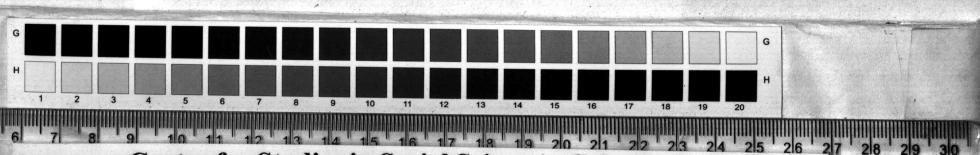

Hence, when I got to the front again, I though it no breach of confidence to allow the truth, guile fully elicited from my friend the corporal, to lead out. I even took a little pleasure in learning the it had reached the ears of the officer in comman of the expedition. Probably something in Colonel Asterisk's reputation gave a certain color to the story. Anyway, when, for a certain strateging reason, we were one day ordered to fall back on the depot, and were thereafter grievously annoyed by large detachment of the enemy which had the bad taste to follow us, a queer thing occurred I chanced to be standing near the chief, and sharin with his staff the very unpleasant attentions of the foe. I was so near, in the fact, as to hear part of a conversation that occurred.

"This has got to be stopped, and with the bayonet," said the chief to one of his aides, "and we'll, I shouldn't like to libel him, but I believ the hundredth part of a wink occluded it; anywah he invited me to dine at his mess that night) —"Ye' and well, I shouldn't like to libel him, but I belie the hundredth part of a wink occluded it; anyw he invited me to dine at his mess that night)—"Y by gad," he concluded, "call up the 199th."

The detachment I have mentioned did not any us any longer. There wasn't enough of it left to any annoying. The 199th returned bloody radiant; and what is more remarkable, most remarkable of all, I do not believe that any regiment camp grudged them their opportunity. And some people pretend that Mr. Atkins is prone envy other people's good fortune!

The Madras revenue returns for the whole official year 1897-98 amount to 1,110 lakhs against 1,001 lakhs in 1896-97. The increase in the Land Revenue was 36 lakhs. The fortnightly report of the Board of Revenue states that the recent rainfall is of little use to the standing crops, and is insufficient to improve the water-supply. Pasture is almost non-existent and considerable areas and forest reserves are being thrown open for grazing. Prices, though are being thrown open for grazing. Prices, though somewhat easier owing to the harvest, are still near scarcity rates. raised, and the policy of England in the Far East disclosed.

It cannot be pretended that the statements of Mr. Balfour and the Duke of Devonshire were altogether reassuring. We were told that the seizure of Port Arthur took the Government by surprise, though as far back as 1895 Russia's designs on that place were perfectly well ascertained and ample warning has since been given. Some months ago, writing in the Daily Mail, I commented on the ignorance of events, known to every British reader of his newspaper, which seemed to prevail in Government offices. What I then said was confirmed on Tuesday night. Mr. Curzon, for instruce, was quite certain that Wai-Hai-Wei was not fortified, although I have photographs in my possession which show clearly that it is at the present moment defended by enormous works.

The acquisition of Wei-Hai-Wei was the great master-stroke to which the Government pointed. It is "to balance Port Arthur, and prevent Pekin being wholly dominated by Russia. It is carnot on the carnot now recede with honour feom and the present made themselves felt, when the results of the lock-out have not yet made themselves felt, when the interests menaced are of the greatest magnitude, when events both in China and in West Africa demand the utmost firmness, when Japan is our probable ally, I do not see why we should prepare to fight to-morrow, when in many pects the odds will be against us, or why we should acquire Wei-Hai-Wei, unless we can see our points upon which we yet require information. The interests menaced are of the greatest magnitude, when the results of the lock-out have not jet made themselves felt, when the interests menaced are of the greatest magnitude, when the results of the lock-out have not jet made themselves felt, when the interests menaced are of the greatest magnitude, when the interests menaced are of the greatest magnitude, when the interests menaced are of the purpose when Japan the vents when devents all, and the prevent pet made themselves felt, when the interests menaced are being wholly dominated by Russia. It is essential, therefore, that we should compare it with Port Arthur to discover what sort of an Exchange we have made.

Port Arthur is already a naval base; it has a large dock, workshops, and basin it which ships can lie. It is surrounded by strong works, which only want guns. It is, from the military point of view, compact and easily defensible. The area of the harbour is not large; the depth of the entrance is shallow (25ft.), but this is to a great extent compensated by the narrowness of the passage, which can with the utmost ease be closed to torpedo-boats. Port Arthur stands on a small and mountainous Port Arthur stands on a small and mountainous Peninsula, the neck of which is commanded by Talienwan. It has a hinterland in Manchuria.

Last of all, it is now in actual possession of Russia.

At Wei-Hai-Wei the very opposite conditions apply. There are extensive fortifications, but in many cases these are so badly placed that Ting, the Chinese admiral, wished to destroy them in 1896. There is no naval base, as we have come to understand the term. There are no docks, no basins, no workshops nothing but a signal station and a coaling jetty. The harbour is rather an anchorage than a harbour: it is exposed to east winds, the entrances are three in number—divided by two islands—and very wide. The Chinese endeavoured to close them by booms, but the Chinese endeavoured to close them by booms, but the booms were easily broken by the Japanese torpedoboats, and this is not wonderful as the total width to be protected is four miles. Shelter is given on the seaward side by the island of Liu-Kung, just two miles long, and by a small islet known as Jih-Tao. On Liu-Kung, which is high and rocky, there is not room for a naval station with docks and store-houses.

The grave defect of Wei-Hai-Wei from our point of view is that the island of Liu-Kung is dominated by the heights on the mainland. These fall into the hands of the Japanese in 1895 with scarcely a struggle, and thereafter the position of the Chinese fleet in the harbour was desperate.

The line of defence on the mainland is long the The line of defence on the mainland is long the positions are very scattered, and therefore if fortified a large garrison would be necessary. The Japanese find that from 10,000 to 18,000 men are needed to hold it. There is so real hinterland, unless we are ready to quarrel with Germany; the country immediately behind it is mountainous, unproductive, and sparsely inhabited. Still communication by land with Kivo-Chau is by no means as difficult as has been represented.

The suggestion that Wei-Hai-Wei is stronger than Port Arthur was made by the Duke of Devonshire. Port Arthur was made by the Duke of Devonshire. He might have known had he read the history of the war, that this is not the case. Wei-Hai-Wei offered a more protracted resistance, because Ting with his fleet was determined to fight to the last: and because the Chinese sailor under English discipline had become a better fighting man than the Chinese soldier. The land forts at Wei-Hai-Wei, garrisoned by the Chinese army, were carried with the same ease as the much stronger works at with the same ease as the much stronger works at

So long as Russia has 60,000 men in Northern China, she will control the situation, and all Chinese concessions to us will be liable to be revoked at her pleasure. China without military aid is unable to make a stand, and military aid we cannot give her.

The lease of Wei-Hei-Wei for these reasons cannot counterbalance the lease of Port Arthur and the virtual surrender of Manchuria. It has been viewed by Russia as distinctly unfriendly to her; which shows how her pretentions are growing. The time has come for us very carefully to consider our relations with this Power. Are we to be her enemy? Then, if so, does not real wisdom lie in striking at once, before he Siberian railway is completed, before the fortifications of Port Arthur are fully armed, while our sea power can be exerted with effect? The danger which threaten our commerce and our national interests are perfectly clear. We have to dread the gradual absorption of Northern China by Russia, to her; which shows how her pretentions are gradual absorption of Northern China by Russia, of outhern China by France, while all the while we are conciliated with paper promises and pledges, made only to be broken at the first favourable opportunity.

It is absurd to urge that what has happened at Batum and Bizerta can be prevented at Port Arthur or Talienwan, because Port Arthur and Talienwan are on the open sea. The assurance originally given that Port Arthur was to be an open port have already been withdrawn, and our Ministers are so far satisfied that they complacently explain, "Port Arthur is too small to be a commercial port." The exact size of Port Arthur could be ascertained in January. February, or March. mercial port." The exact size of Port Arthur could be ascertained in January, February, or March, when we were being misled by this talk about an open port, had Ministers taken the troubles to examine the Admiralty chart. To-morrow Port Arthur and Talienwan will be what Sebastopol and Nikolaiev are to-day, impregnable to naval attack and our fleet will be helpless against their guns and works. They are not hostage in our hands. Looking at the past, at the manner in which Russia has broken pledge after pledge, wel can feel no confidence in her guarantees. The readiness of British Ministers to accept them is one more instance of our fatal tendency to surrender the rea instance of our fatal tendency to surrender the rea for the unsubstantial. No, if we are not going to fight, away with all illusions about the "open door" and free ports! As Lord Charles Beresford has said, the "open door" is marvellously like brick wall.

Allusions in the Ministerial statement give colour

Antisions in the Amisterial Scattering gree condi-to the view that Germany and Japan are not unfriend-ly. It is to be hoped that the nation is being treated fairly and not misled, as it was upon the question of the "open door" and "free port". But between friendliness and alliance is a great gulf fixed, and we want to know whether it has been crossed. Should an alliance between England and Japan on the one hand, and Germany, Austria, and Italy on the other be possible, we could contemplate the future without uneasiness. The trend of opinion in the House of Commons was distinctly in favour in the House of Commons was distinctly in favour of some such shuffling of the political cards. If, however, we are trusting to a future "Concert of Europe" to settle the questions pending in the Far East, we are woefully deceiving outselves. The "Concert of Europe" has settled nothing, and agreed upon nothing. We want an alliance, and not this very "1 utch Concert."

In the Ministerial statements there were two very curious omissions. No attempt was made to define our sphere of influence on the Yang-tse basin. In view of what has happened in West Africa, it is extremely desira le to know, how we stand and to let others know what we consider stand and to let others know what we consider our free trade area. The Chinese concession is no guarantee, for in the past in the matter of Kieng-Chang, Ching has not scrupled to break faith with us at the dictation of France and Russia. Moreover, at the present time France is actually demanding Yunnan, which is the Upper Tangtse valley, and which will, if granted to her, at once cut off Burma from expansion and make an inroad into our supposed sphere of influence. Yet Mr. Balfour ta'ks as if the "carving of provinces out of the Chinese Empire" were an idle dream on alarmists.

Chinese Empire" were an idle dream on alarmists.

Again, nothing was said of the action of France in demanding the province of Kwang-Tung, which includes not only the enormously important trading centre of Canton, but also Mirs Bay and the hinterland of Hongkong. We have been told that no British Government would dare to allow Mirs Bay to pass into the hands of a foreign Power, and that an attempt to seize it would mean war. Yet here is the attempt actually being made. I trust that the Government will stand firm, but uneasiness may well be felt.—H. W. Wilson, in the Daily News.

BISMARCK STORIES.

ANECDOTES OF THE IRON CHANCELLOR.

DURING the siege of Paris the Parisian Press printed all sorts of abuse of the invaders. "Those-sauerkraut-eating barbarians" was a phrase not infragmently made to the property of the pro frequently made use of.

When Jules Favre went for the first time from Paris to Versailles, Bucher, the Chancellor's private Parts to Versailles, Buener, the Chanterlor's private secretary, had just received some smoked geese and a small barrel of sauerkraut, and these German delicacies were served as the first course at dinner, at which Favre sat beside the Prince.

Favre partook of them with almost ravenous appetite, and not only answered Bismark's repeated question as to whether he liked them with the most satisfactory assurances in the affirmative, but also asked the name of the carquisite dish," which he had never tasted before. Bismarck answered with a chuckle, "Oh, that's the notorious choucroute." This incident is related in "Bismarck's Table-Talk."

marck's Table-Talk."

It is not generally known that in his youngea days Bismarck was occasionally given to poetical aspirations. A Prussian lady of title once succeeded in getting a page of her autograph album filled by Moltke and the Prince. The Marshal's contribution may be Anglicised thus:

Shams soon fade away,

Thus produces for the Truth endures for aye.

Underneath this effort Bismark penned: I do believe, forsooth, That in some di tant "Happy Land" The sportive virgin, Truth, May exercise supreme command.
But on our worldly scene.
Where falsehood and Deception reign,

Where faisenood and Deceptor Feigh,
Lies are so strong, that e'en
Our Mars al fights with them in vain.
A duel in which Bismark was once engaged had a very amusing origin. It occured when the young "blood" was Chief Secretary of the Paussian Legation at Frankfort.

Being very popular he went much into society and one Christmas attended a big ball. During the height of the festivities Bismarck's, and indeed, everybody's, attention was directed to an exceedingly pompous individual, who strutted about the room. This was a M. de Clancy, a Frenchman, and a noted duellist.

Later on this important individual took part in a dance, but, having omitted to leave his hat at the proper place, had perforce to hold it out almost at arm's length while he danced. The spectacle tickled Bismarck immensely, and as the Frenchman came sailing majestically along Bismarck stepped forward and dropped a coin into the hat!

Of course, a diel was one of the course.

of course, a duel was one of the next day's events. Though it was with pistols, however, Bismarck's lucky star never deserted him; he escaped unhurt, while his adversary was wounded.

Bismarck came to be called "The Iron Chancellor "from a sentence he used in a speech on the consolidation of the Empire—"The unity of Germany can only be effected by blood and iron!"

Bismarck has been so long in the position of asking and not answering questions, that in his old age he is apt to get impatient whenever his physician displays the inquisitiveness necessary to his profession.

Once the Prince is said to have exclaimed,

"What on earth are you driving, at, doctor?" but the doctor, being no less firm and blunt than his patient, replied, I am at your orders, Prince; but if you wish to be treated without being questioned. you had better send for the veterinary surgeon, who is accustomed to physic in that way."

The Prince has had many doctors in his time, but none ever succeeded in managing the Iron Chancellor so well as the present one. Indeed, the Prince one said, 1'The difference between him and my former doctors lies in that - that I treated them while he treated me.'

Bismarck was at one time fond of telling a simple story—it is probably an old friend to most people now - of how he enjoyed a cigar which he did not snoke

THE LATEST DISCOVERY IN EYE SURGERY.

APPLICATION OF THE X. RAYS PRINCIPLE.

Or all the prominent discoveries of the present age none deserves notice more than the recent one of Mr. Mackenzie Davidson, now resident in London, but formerly leading oculist in Aberdeen. It was believed generally that the Rontgen rays when discovered would prove a valuable addition to eye surgery, but after a little, surgeons began to realize that these ex-pectations had not been fulfilled, and that these rays were much more useful in the diagnosis of foreign sub stances in the human body, than in defining any such in the fine and delicate interstices of the eye; but a few weeks ago Mr. Mackenzie Davidson solved the mystery, and now the most delicate part of the eye can be operated a time when I saw you so bad.'

"Thank you,' I replied, and I was sad enough myself but Mother Seigel's Syrup has made me glad again, for it has given me back my good again, for it has given me back my good again, for it has given me back my good again, for it has given me back my good again. health.

nation of the ame. The apparatus defines the length of the offensive substance, outlines its exact position, and the depth to which the surgeon has to cut to reach it. The London Daily News had a representative see the process applied, who write you should publish what I have told you (Signed) Mrs. Mary Jane Redhead, 73, Peter Street Blackburn, April 4th, 1894."

We congratulate Mrs. Redhead, and tender our regards to the kind-hearted neighbour who was so sorry for her. But what a pity that Mrs. R. didn't know in August what she learned in Octobernamely, that her disease was indigestion and dyspepsia, and that Mother Seigel's Syrup is a cure for it; some folks say the only cure. Well, we suppose she had to wait her turn to find that out. There's a deal of mystery about these things.

Anyway, she knows now, and the printing of her story will enable lots o other sufferers to begin where she left off. They won't take the Syrup as she did, not knowing what else to do, but they will take it the very day they fall ill, knowing that to be exactly the right thing to do.

Recommended by A Medical Friend the correctness of Mr. Davidson's methods." Before this invention the Rontgen rays had had no place in ophthalmic surgery, because no surgeon would care to operate on the eye with only an ordinary XRay picture to guide him. Mr. Davidson has already saved numerous eyes which must otherwise have been lost, and his method of localisation will enable bundreds of eyes to be saved in the future. Of course the method is applicable to the whole body, but its widest field will be in the direction of ophthalmic work, for the operator has only to follow Mr. Davidson's simple methods, to be able to diagnose correctly, to operate successfully, and to remove the offending substance with certainty and directness. certainty and directness.

Mr. Davidson's methods are, to take two Ront-A Mr. Davidson's methods are, to take two Ront-2 gen ray photographs on the same plate, or in some instances (as when it is desired to locate a fragment in the eye) on two separate plates. For each picture the vacuum tube is shifted into a different position, so that the resulting picture shows double images; by means of which the exact position and depth of the bodies to be extracted can be determined. extracted can be determined.

The apparatus for taking the photographs has a horizontal bar on which is a scale graduate i in millemetres, and on this bar the Crooke's tube is made to slide up and down. The patient places the part of his body to be radiographed on a plate situated immediately under the bar; and when the tube is shifted for the second exposure its position on the scale is carefully noted. The plate is then developed in the usual way, and as before mentioned shows everything double. From the measurements made before exposing the plates one could by means of mathematical formulæ or geometrical drawing to scale arrive at a correct knowledge could by means of mathematical formulæ or geometrical drawing to scale arrive at a correct knowledge of the position of the foreign body. But this would be a tediocs and difficult process, involving long abstruse calculations. Mr. Davidson's method of localisation is simplicity itself. The apparatus contains a horizontal stage and a horizontal bar with a scale on it. The negative with the double image upon it, is placed upon the horizontal stage, and is so adjusted, that it is now in exactly the same conditions as it occupied when being taken. All that is now required is to trace the path of the X rays which produced the negative and this is how it is done.

The distance on each side of the middle point of the scale to which the tube was displaced being known, two fine white sil threads are laced at these spots, small weights are attached to one of the ends of each thread while the other is threaded into a fine needle which is weighted by being the ends of each thread while the other is threaded into a fine needle which is weighted by being fixed into small lead weights, in shape resembling a mouse. On the negative (as before stated) two images of the foreign body—whatever it may be—are seen. If one of the threads is placed on the point of the needle in one shadow correctly, it will indi ate the path of the X rays that produced on the corresponding point of the other shadow, it follows that the position actually occupied by the point of the needle in the flesh of the patient is precisely where the two threads cross. By means now where the two threads cross. By means now of a pair of compasses and an upright square the operator can at once give the surgeon the exact depth at which each of the extremities of the foreign body can be reached by a vertical puncture. There is no doubt that there are even greater possibilities for the future of this apparently simple and reliable invention; and what a boon it will be to those who pr viously had been looking forward to a life time of disabled sight can be better imagined than described, and the climatic influences on the eve in where the two threads cross. By means now described, and the climatic influences on the eye in India make the invention doubly precious to those w o are compelled to live out here.

MADHEPURA is at a distance of 28 miles from Raghopur Railway station, B. N. W. R. The road to Raghopur passes through Singheswarsthan, Amha, Pipra, Audiputti, Maheshpur and other villages of less note. This road is undoubtedly a very important and frequented one for passengers and traffic alike. Of late, badmashes and ruffians have commenced frequenting the roadside at night and putting passengers to inconvenience and trouble. In one instance my servant, who accompanied my son, a boy of 13 years, riding an elephant, had a narrow escape from these ruffians on the road between Audiputti and Maheshpur at about 7-30 P. M. on the 22nd March. On another occasion some members of the family of a local pleader, passing on the road near Amta village, met 5 or 6 ruffans with spears in their hands, who, being asked, said they were Pathans. A Kabuli who ac-companied, had to muster his gun to disperse them. Then again, there was a murder committed on this road near Audiputi lately. Should not the Chawkidars of each and every village be warned to keep a strict watch on the roadside falling within these muhallas? There ought to be 2 police out posts located, one between Singheswar and Pipra and the other between Pipra and Moheshpur, and a regular Police patrol on the said road. The Sub-Divisional Officer of Supaul, who is a very well-spoken of executive officer, will, I think, lose no time to move in the matter.

THE recrudescence of plague in Hongkong has fortunately not so far been extensive in its ravages, though from the returns it appears to be of as virulent a type as was the last outbreak. For the week ending April 2nd there were 45 cases reported and 40 deaths. Since the 1st of January to the date named, the totals reached had been 232 cases and 200 deaths. This is an extremely heavy mortality, and seems to indicate that Hongkong is again in for a big-dose of his devastating scourge. a big dose of this devastating scourge.

Our Health Officer has issued the following note:

—In any work on Public Health it will be found laid down that in addition to general cleansing operations and sanitary improvements, there are three laid down that in addition to general cleansing opera-ions and sanitary improvements, there are three special measures that can be taken adopted in dealing with epidemic disease, viz., notification, isolation and disinfection. These measures have been adopt-ed by the authorities in dealing with the epidemics of plague that have recently occurred in China and India. During my visit to Bombay, I have endea-voured to ascertain, what measure of success they have met with there. I am satisfied that from the time the disease was fully recognised, the time the disease was fully recognised, the Executives spared neither money nor work to make them effective, and yet about 225,000 (?) persons thave died of plague in the City of Bombay, and something like 80,000 (?) in the Presidency and the disease after 18th months of indefit. dency, and the disease after 18th months of indefati dency, and the disease after 18th months of indefatigable work on these lines is still causing a heavy mortality in the city. Some of the plague authorities with whom I discussed the question expressed a decided conviction that the mortality would have been much greater if this measures had not been rigorously carried out, but there is very little evidence of this, and the result obtained is far from reassuring. There are several reasons why this exerten should fail in a large Indian town. The first is that nothing will make the people notify their cases if the immediate result of their doing so is that the patient it may be a purdah wife, is hurried off to a hospital and other members of the family to a segregation camp. The more stringently the measures are enforced the more pains do they take to concea their cases, and even search parties supported by al the powers of the police and military do not avail to discover more than a moderate proportion of them. In the first 15 days of March, 1898, 2, 242, attacks and 2,513 deaths from plague were registered. The total mortality was 4,620, the average mortality being 1,059. The difference 3,570 reprebeing 1,059. The difference 3,570 represents approximately the true plague mortality. But as only 2,513 such deaths were reported, it would appear that in 15 days 1,057 death coursed which were not discovered. The number f non-fatal attacks not discovered can not be esmated with the same exactitude, but attacks are asier to conceal than deaths, so that it is proable that at least one non-fatal attack remained ndiscovered for each death that remained undisovered, which would bring the number of undis overed, which would bring the humber of datas-overed cases of plague in 15 days up to the total of 2,114. Disinfection depends on notification, for, if a considerable proportion of the cases is left un-discovered, it naturally follows that disinfection fails, a large amount of infective matter being left in a virulent state to spread the disease. Even if every human case were discovered at the outset and disinfection carried out in the most approved manner, I doubt whether it would be effective as it appears that the infection is carried by rats, and perhaps other agencies which we are not yet aware of and even if the whole building were reduced to ashes the probability is that some of the infected fats would escape, and carry the infection into other dwellings. Segregation is likewise dependent on notification, and has in my opinion equally failed. In January and February there were 7,670 attacks of plague reported in Wari Bandar. This at the very low rate of 3 contacts, a case would give 23,010 very low rate of 3 contacts, a case would give 23,010 persons to be segregated in the Wari Bandar Camp. But only 1,572 were actually segregated there. So 21,428 persons who had been in close contact with plague cases escaped segregation in spite of the utmost vigilance and energy on the part of a large and costly staff of the most capable men who could be got together for the purpose. Under these circumstances, segregation could not be expected to exert very much influence in checking an epidemic. It is, I am convinced, impossible to carry out a measure like segregation in a large oriental city when the entire population is against it. If the system adopted in Bombay, were approved in a convinced in Bombay, were approved in a convinced in the system adopted in the system and ed in Bombay, were enforced in an enlighten-ed European City, there is very little doubt that there would be concealment of cases and not improbably, resistance to authority. How much more then is it hopeless to expect that it will succeed with an oriental population with its Purdah system, and crystalised custom that have remained unchanged for ages.

To consider the question from another point of sieve there are certain discovery which has a contained.

view, there are certain diseases which no one in Europe would think of treating on these lines. Take for instance influenza, the infection is so all pervading that no rational man would think of trying to destroy it with disinfection and isolation. Even in measles it is a matter of control managines heilers coal burkers and storage versy whether any appreciable good can be done by including iti n the category of notifiable diseases, and dealing with it in this way. But plague, though perhaps not so infectious as influenza, is probably more so than measles. Up to too years ago the infantile mortality from small-pox in Europe was terrible, and no means were found adequate to check it until the efficacy of vaccination was established, and measures were adopted to enforce it with the result that small-pox has now lost most of its terrors. The conclusion I draw from all this is that the system of notification isolation and disinfection has proved and is bound to prove a failure in dealing with all epidemic of plague in a city, and that we must look for some other measure which will, at least, give some prospect of success. The only one that appears to me in any way feasible is to deal with plague as we deal with small-pox by sending our vaccinators to the spot to vaccinate as many of the people living there or thereabouts as can be induced to submit to the operation. In Haffkine's prophylactic we have a vaccine against plague of proved efficacy which, as at present included, reduces the mortality between 80 and 90 per cent. There is, moreover, considerable evidence to show that the protection offers lasts through at least one outbreak and probably longer. I am convinced that this officer much better prospect of controlling an epidemic of plague than any other measure that has been suggested. The only question in my mind is epidemic of plague than any other measure that has been suggested. The only question in my mind is as to the best means of carrying it out. If Government were to ordet all people exposed to infection to be inoculated they would have a grievance and would probably resist. There might even be serious trouble. But the people would do almost anything to get out of the obnoxious removal from their houses, and to do this would probably submit to inoculation very readily even at the commencement, and still more so when they realised that the inoculated in most cases, escaped infection. submit to inoculation very readily even at the commencement, and still more so when they realised that the inoculated in most cases, escaped infection. So I suggest making the old classical measures of isolation and segregation is stringent as possible on paper, and at the same time letting it be known that they would not be enforced in a house in which not less than half the inmutes submitted to inoculation. I believe that this could be done with a minimum of friction, and that most people could further be persuaded to allow their poor relations and dependents to be taken to hospitals if stricken with plague, and that to insist on the master of the house or his wife being removed would only lead to the concealment of cases. It is above all things important to have the people on our side and not working against us, and if this measures were carried out with tact and consideration, I believe the people would appreciate them and probably assist us, or at least offer a minimum of opposition. The efficacy of the prophylactic is so apparent that it is by no means improbable that it would soon be recognised by considerable proportion of the people whe would voluntarily come forward to be inoculated for their own protection. Money must be freely expended in dealing with an epidemic of plague. In Bombay something like Rs. 2,500,000 has been spent in dealing with 25,000 cases or Rs. 100 a case, I think a certain amount would be well laid out giving a small dole for a couple of days to poor persons who submitted to inoculation, say As 4 a day for the two days that he might be unable to earn his livelihood for each bread winner of an inoculated family. We should, of course, be largely dependent on the assistance of enlightened native gentlemen in carrying this out. There would be no difficulty about getting a sufficient supply of the prophylactic from Bombay. I have enough to inoculate 1, 000 persons to start with.

SPAIN AND THE UNITED STATES.

THE report on the Maine disaster was submitted to Congress on March 28th together with a message from President McKinley, in which the latter said : - " For some time prior to the visit of the Maine to Havana our Consular representatives pointed out the advantages which would flow from a visit of national ships to Cuban waters in accustoming people to the presence of our flag as a symbol of goodwill and of our ships in fulfilment of their mission of the protection of American interests, even though no immediate need might exist. Accordingly, on January 24th, after a conference with the Spanish Minister, in which the renewal of the visits of our war vessels to Spanish waters was discussed and accepted, the authorities in Madrid and Havana were advised of the purpose of this Government to resume friendly naval visits to Cuban ports, and that the Maine would forthwith call at Havana. This announcement was received by the Spanish Government with an expression of the appreciation of the friendly character of the visit of the Maine and with a notification of Spain's intention to return the courtesy by sending Spanish ships to the principal ports of the United States. The Maine continued at Havana during three weeks. No appreciable excitement attended her stay. On the contrary a feeling of relief and confidence followed the resumption of the long-interrupted friendly intercourse, so notice able was this immediate effect of the Maine's visit that the United States Consul-General strongly urged that the presence of our ships in Cuban waters should be kept up by retaining the Maine at Havana, or in the event of her recall, sending another vessel to take her place." The President then recites the details of the explosion. He says :- "The appalling calamity fell upon the people of our country with crushing force, and for a brief time intense excitement prevailed which, in a community less just and self-controlled than ours, might have led to hasty acts of blind resentment. This spirit, however, soon gave way to the calmer processes of reason, and to a resolve to investigate the facts and await material proof before forming a judgment as to the cause and the responsibility. This course necessarily recommended itself from the outset to the Executive; for only in the light of a dispassionately ascertained certainty could it determine the nature and measure of its full duty in the matter.

"The usual procedure was followed as in all cases of disaster to the national vessels of any maritime State. A naval court of inquiry was at once organised, composed of officers well qualified by rank and by practical experience to discharge the onerous duty imposed on them, aided by a strong force of wreckers and divers. The court proceeded to make a thorough investigation. Its operations have been conducted with the utmost deliberation and judgment; and while the inquiry was independently pursued, no source of information was neglected, and the fullest opportunity was allowed for simultaneous investigation by the Spanish authorities. The report of the court is herewith laid before Congress, together with the voluminous evidence taken. Its purport is, in brief, as fol-lows:—When the Maine arrived at Havana she was conducted by a regular Government discipline on board and the condition of the did magazines boilers coal bunkers, and storage compartments were excellent. No indication of any cause for internal explosion existed in any quarter at eight o'clock in the even-ing of February 15th. Everything had been reported secure, and all was quiet. At forty minutes past nine the vessel was suddenly destroyed. There were two distinct explosions with a brief interval between them. The first lifted the forward part of the ship perceptibly and the second which was more open and prolonged, was of greater volume. This is attributed by the court to the partial explosion of two or more forward magazines. The evidence of divers establishes the fact that the after part of the ship was practically intact and sank in that condition a few minutes after the explosion. The forward part was completely demo-lished. Upon the evidence of a concurrent external cause the finding of the court is as follows: At frame 17 the outer shell of the ship, from a point 11 1/2 ft. from the middle line on the ship and 6ft. above the keel when in its normal position, has been forced up, so as to be now about 4ft. above the surface of the water, and therefore about 34ft. above where it would be had the ship sunk uninjured. The outside bottom plating is bent into a reversed V-shape. The after-wing, which is about 15ft broad and 32ft. in length (frame 17 to frame 25), is doubled bac upon itself against the continuation of the plating extending forward. At frame 18 the vertical keel is broken in two, and the flat keel is bent into an angle formed by the outside bottom plates. This break is now about 6ft. below the surrous posi-water and about 3oft, above normal posinow about 6ft. below the surface of the tion. In the opinion of the court, this effect could have been produced only by the explosion of a mine situated under the bottom of the ship at about frame 18, somewhat on the shore side of the ship. The conclusions of the court are that the loss of the Maine is not in any respect due to fault or negligence on the part of any of the officers or crew; that the ship was destroyed by the explosion of a submarine mine, which caused the partial explosion of two or more forward magazines, and that no evidence has been obtainable fixing the responsibility for the destruction of the Maine upon any person or persons.

"I have directed that the findings of the court and the views of this Government thereon shall be communicated to the Government of Her Majesty the Queen-Regent, and I do not permit myself to doubt that the sense of justice of the Spanish nation will dictate the course of action suggested by honour and by the friendly relations of the two Governments. It will be the duty of the Executive to advice Congress on the result. In the meantime deliberate considera-

The findings of the Commission contained in the report which accompanied the Presi-dent's message are to the following effect: (1) At the time of the explosion the Maine was lying in about six fathoms of water.

(2) Discipline on board was excellent. Everything was stowed according to order. The temperature of the magazines at eight o'clock was normal, with the exception of the after 10-inch magazine, which did not explode. (3) The explosion occurred at 9-40 P.M. There were two explosions, with a very short interval between them. The ship was lifted in the first.

(4) The court can form no definite opinion as to the condition of the wreck from the evidence of the divers.

(5) From the technical details regarding the wreckage given in this part, the deduction is that the mine exploded underneath on the port

(6) The explosion was due to no fault of those on board.

(7) The opinion of the court is that the explosion of a mine caused the explosion of two magazines.

(8) The court declares it cannot find evidence to fix the responsibility.

The members of the court are unanimous in their findings. There is no mention throughout of Spain or Spaniards.

The House of Representatives referred President McKinley's message without debate to the Committee on Foreign Affairs, and then adjourned. In the Senate, owing to the death of a member, the message and report were also at once referred to the Foreign Relations Committee.

PROPOSED ARMISTICE IN CUBA. The American Government has submitted the following suggestions to that of Spain:-Spain to proclaim immediately an armistice in Cuba, to last until October, during that period the United States to use their good offices with the insurgents to make this temporary peace permanent. Spain to do her best to relieve the suffering and starving inhabitants of the island, and the United States to be allowed to assist in this work.

A Cabinet Council was held at Madrid on March 1st. Senor Morest, Minister of the Colonies, read a number of important documents relating to the position of the Reconcentrados in Cuba, and the result of the efforts which had been made to ameliorate their condition The Minister for the Colonies proposed to open a credit of 3,000,000 pesetas, to be placed at the disposal of the Governor-General of Cuba by telegraph, for the relief of the Reconcentrados, for assisting those who wished to return to their fields in carrying on work, and for making them such advances of money as were indispensable for the cultivation of their land. The Council approved the proposal.

A conference between Senor Sagasta and General Woodford, the Spanish Ministers of Foreign Affairs and the Colonies being present, was held the same evening. Senor Sagasta afterwards stated that a written reply had been given to the demands submitted by General Woodford; and that the latter was forwarding it to his Government.

PLANTER AND COOLIES.

SEVERE REMARKS BY THE MAGISTRATE.

WHAT is known as the Glenomera assault case has just been decided by Mr. Freeman, the District Magistrate of Hatton, Ceylon. This was a charge brought against three coolies on the estate of causing hurt with a knife to the manager, Mr. Carmichael. The Magistrate convicted the accused and sentenced each of them to three months' rigorous imprisonment, but in doing so he made some very severe remarks on the conduct of Mr. Carmichael, whom he described as entirely responsible for the occurrence. The trouble arose through two of the coolies being "halfnamed" by direction of Mr. Carmichael though they were not only not late for their work but Iney protested to Mr. Carmichael, whereupon ne severely assaulted one of them knocking him down. The other two accused then intervened, knives were used and Mr. Carmichael received some severe cuts. The Magistrate said it was a most unfair proceeding to give the men half-name and monstrous to propose "to stop rice," which was threatened. No reasonable master would have acted so unnaturally. There was a considerable body of evidence, which he believed to be true, as to Mr. Carmichael's general bad behaviour on the estate; like others of this type of master, he construed as impertinence all observations of the coolies by way of protest against unjust treatment. The language used by the coolies was not very pretty, but it was intelligible when one considered the feelings of the common cooly who had worked for a whole day from 7 A.M., to 4 P.M., pruning 210 tea bushes and getting only half-a-day's pay therefore, namely, 18 1-2 cents. The British workman would probably use much more abundantly flowery language if subjected to such mean treatment. The Magistrate went on to say that Mr. Carmichael admitted he struck the first blow, and that his dogs assisted him in the attack on the coolies, but there was also evidence that the knives were used to some extent otherwise than defensively. He continued: The men appear to have left the estate through fear of being shot, for they heard a reward offered for their capture, and Mr. Carmichael himself capture, and Mr. Carmichael himself admits his intention was to go to the lines with a gun to catch them. Perhaps it is fortunate they quitted. Had the accused gone quietly to the nearest police station and surrendered, and instituted a charge for the assault on one of their number (Arumugam), substantial justice could have been done by the conviction of both master and man, the only fair issue of these proceedings. As it is, Mr. Carmichael, the original disturber of the peace, gets off scot free, though he richly deserves punishment of the nature I shall award accused. The evidence shows that there is intense feeling against Mr. Carmichael on the estate.

THE Hon'ble Mr. Justice Shephard, Senior Judge, has been gazetted to act as Chief Justice of Madras during the absence, on furlough of Sir A. Collins.

THE prosecution of Guard Murray and the Stationmaster of Ledaunggan for causing the recent collision on the Railway between Togyaungale and Ledaunggan ended in the acquittal of the Stationmaster and a verdict of guilty against the Guard, who was sentenced, by the District Magistrate of Pegu, to one nth's simple imprisonment.

WARFARE IN FIGURES.

SOME SIGNIFICANT STATISTICS.

THOSE who like to feel their pulses stirred at the prospect of war must have been more in their element luring the past twelve months than for a quarter of a century. International situations and rumours of war have been the order of the day since.

Strangely enough, though almost everybody talks glibly enough of war just now, it is generally agreed that no one can possibly realise, much less describe, what the horrors of the next great war will be like. Perhaps the statistical method is as effective as any in an attempt to represent the results of war.

In the last really great war – that between France and Germany France lest expressions.

In the last really great war - that between France and Germany - France lost as many as 136,000 men, of whom some 80,000 died of wounds received in battle, 36,000 by sickness, accident, suicide etc., and 20,000 in German prisons. A French statistician estimates that his countryment who were wounded, but who survived, numbered 138, 000; those injured on the march or by accident 11,421; those we recovered from illness accident 11,421; those we recovered from illness 328,000, making a total of 477,421 direct sufferers. The German killed numbered 40,877; 17,255 died on the field and 21,023 in the ambulances; making 79,155 in all. The wounded who survived numbered 18,543 men. From first to last the German field artillery fired 340,000 shots and the infantry 20,000,000. The booty of war consisted of 5,526 fortress guns, 1,915 field guns and rapid firing cannon. 107 eagles and flags, and 855,000 firing cannon, 107 eagles and flags, and 855,000 on abandoned fields.

The monetary loss suffered by France was 12,669, 487, 522fr., including 2,386,412, 558fr. for military expenses, 5,742,938,814fr. paid to Germany, loans 1,156,327,555fr, losses suffered by the State 2,033,939,000fr., public works 207,239,800fr., indemnities paid by the State to departments 604, 622, 425fr., damages borne by the communes and not re-imbursed by the State 535,007,000fr.

Seden, 154,000 Germans against 90,000 French; German loss 8,920, or 5'5 per cent; French loss 38,000, or 42'2 per cent. The total loss to both sides averaged 12'5 per cent. of the fighting strength. For the Seven Years War the average was 23'5 per cent.; for the Napoleonic wars 19; Russo-Polish war (1831) 18'5; Italian war (1848-49) leonic wars 19; Russo-Polish war (1831) 18.5; Italian war (1848-49) 5.5; Austro-Hungarian war (1848-49-) 4.5; Crimean war 15; Austro-Prussian war of 1866,12. Turkey, partly from necessity and partly from choice is the most warlike of the European nations. Her record from the beginning of the century to the end of 1896 was 37 years of war and 59 of peace. Spain with 31 years of war to 65 of peace has second place; then comes France with 27 years of war and 69 of peace; Russia 24 years of war and 72 to of peace; Italy 23 years of war and 73 of peace; England 21 years of peace and 75 of war; Austria-Hungary 17 and 79; the Netherlands 14 and 82; Germany (exclusive of Prussia) 13 and 83; Prussia 12 and 84; Sweden 10 and 83; Prussia 12 and 84; Sweden 10 and 86; Portugal 12 and 84 and Denmark 9 and 87. The Captain Berndt to whom allusion has been made above is authority for the statement that in the past four centuries Austria has waged 63 wars against foreign foes, 22 of then against France. In these 22 she fought 92 battles of importance and 106 minor engagements. Of the 198 engagements Austria won 110 and France 88. The Italians occupied Austria's attention in 10 wars, Turkey in 9 wars, and Prussia in 5 wars. All told, the troops of Austria have fought in 7,000 engagements, great and small, in the last 400 years, an average of over 17 per annum. age of over 17 pcr annum.

THE COLOURS OF THE RAINBOW.

EVERY schoolboy knows the names of the "seven colours" and doubtless—if of an observant disposition—has been often puzzled by his inability to detect them in the bows which come under his notice. The real fact is that many of them are frequently absent—indeed, there are few natural phenomena whose character is more variable. Not only are the colour variable, but the number of bows is equally so the so called "spurious bows" lying inside the primary very greatly in number and brilliancy, and often can not be seen.

Nevertheless, all these modifications are accounted for by the exact mathematical theory, and a recent investigator, Mr. J. M. Pernter, has expended a vast amount of labour in calculating the tints and their positions in the sky for different sizes of rain drops, and has confirmed his results by experiment, thus giving a valuable explanation of much that was previously obscure in the phenomenon.

Rain drops vary in radius from one-tenth to one two-hundred andsfiftieth of an inch, and to each size of drop corresponds a different pattern of bow. For example, in a stream of drops one twenty-fifth of an inch in radius the following colours are observed; Red, orange-yellow, green, violet, blue, a second violet, and then twelve "spurious bows," consisting of alternations of pinkish violet and green or blue; at the sixth of "spurious bows," consisting of alternations of pin-kish violet and green or blue; at the sixth of hese is a whitish band, after which the colours in the "spurious bows" are reversed. With drops of half this size no less than forty shedas, of colour can be seen in the bow. If the drops range between one twenty-fifth of an inch and double that size, the primary bow shows an intense pink and green, and hardly any other colour; bows of this character are occasionally seen in heavy thunderstorms, and the absence seen in heavy thunderstorms, and the absence of yellow and violet generally excites remark. Extremely small drops give a white bow with blue and yellow edges; while very big drops are indicatedby a specially intense red; moreover, the number of spurious bows is greater as the drops are larger.

These conclusions are of considerable interest to the meteorologist, enabling him, from an inspection of the bow, to estimate the size of the rain drops. The importance of this is at once evident if we recall the importance of this is at once evident if we recall the intimate connection existing between big rain drops and electrical disturbances; the size of the drops depends very largely on the electrical state of the clouds which discharge them and of the air through which they pass. Thus the examination of rainbows will probably throw a good deal of light on the electrical state of the atmosphere, a subject on which informations sadly lacking, and consequently any fresh method of observation is of great value.

THE Madras Legislative Council will meet on the Nilgiris on the 13th proximo.

IT may be interesting to many of our readers to know how Prof. S. K. Banerjee conceived the idea of taming wild animals and how he developed his skill in that direction. Ten years ago, while at Sylhet with a circus party which he had himself formed and which, was composed only of athletes, he came across a body of Mahomedans who had caged a leopard and were eking out a subsistence by a public show of the animal. He saw the animal, and reflected how much more advantageous would it be to his party if he could secure the animal and himself play with the dangerous brute, and thereby add a novel item to the programme of the entertainment. He did purchase it. At first he had no idea as to how tame the animal. He had, however, indomitable courage, which helped him to make up what he wanted in previous experience. The task was wanted in previous experience. The task was not an easy one, nay, perilous. he having, on several occasions, received a good many wounds, in his attempts to tame the leopard; but in the end, he came off victorious. The animal became entirely submissive. Encouraged by the success, he bought another leopard for the purpose of taming; and when the first one died, he took three more. It was in this manner, that he took three more. It was in this manner, that he took three more. It was in this manner, that he trained eight leopards. At one time he went to Joydebpur with the leopards. Here the Rajah of Bhowal presented him with a Royal Bengal tiger, which he tamed with great success. Since then he has contracted a peculiar attachment for the family of the Master attachment for the family of the Stripes, and would not condescend to med with any of the meaner class. His present tiger is named "Begum", which was presented by the Nawab of Patna.. The Professor himself cannot explain where lies the secret of his unparalleled success in bringing ferocious animals to his control. There is no secret method or magical power he is aware of, to account for his achievement. His belief is that his extraordi nary power of obtaining mastery over wild animals, is a gift of god, like that of poetic genius or the power of eloquence. It cannot be acquired.
